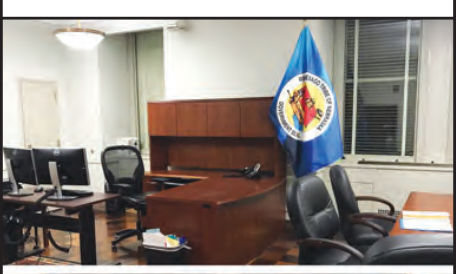
Bago Bits…

Winnebago Indian Senior utility man David Wingett hit the 2000 career point last week when the Indians traveled to west end of the Rez to take on Emerson.

We were waiting for these to be set, but the Wildlife & Parks Department are still showing off their new Hunting Cabins outside their office building.

Just doing their jobs like they do at every home Ponca basketball game, regardless of their opponents.

The HoChunk Village is growing. Work continues on this new home with the plumbing going in this week.



The Obama & Downes era is over in Washington D.C., congratulations Anne Marie for representing you people well.

Who can guess what this is and where its at on the Winnebago Rez, if you guess right, we got a small prize for you.

The LPTC Warriors on a streak, come support them this weekend at WHS, bring your clappers with you.

The Calm Before the Snow Storm

Students of the Winnebago Public School enjoy a day out on the playground before the weather turns bad again. Last week it was Ice Storm & Dense Fog, this week it's time for the white stuff again. Bundle up, won't be long before you're all sweaty & miserable again.

Bago Boyz Even Season Record with Ponca

The Winnebago Indians evened their season record with rival Ponca last weekend, when the Indians traveled to hometown Ponca to make up a game postponed due to bad weather. The Indians won the first match-up on December 29th at Wisner, 60-57 on their way to claiming that Holiday Tournaments 5th straight championship. The Indians last weekend came up short against a physical Ponca team, 48-53. This the second time in a week the Indians scored only 48 points, the last time with the W against a scrappy #6 D-1 Blue Devils team from Wynot. The Indians will be home to Wakefield next Tuesday night, it's Senior & Parents Night. The WIN will be there, will you? Go Big Blue!

Indianz.com… Standing Rock Sioux Tribe focuses on Dakota Access battles as President Trump takes office

The largest #NoDAPL encampment is making plans to leave North Dakota as the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe focuses on the legal and political fight against the Dakota Access Pipeline.

Camp residents had been in talks with tribal leaders about moving Oceti Sakowin to the reservation in order to avoid expected flooding in the spring. But representatives from the Cannonball District voiced concerns about the presence of a large group of people in their community, prompting the council to reject the proposed relocation.

"Councilmen from across the reservation, including Cannonball, described the hardships and strain on the citizens and resources of our nation," the tribe said in a statement posted on Facebook on Saturday.

Organizers of the camp, which is located on federally-managed property near the Cannonball District, immediately heeded the directive and announced plans to evacuate "as soon as possible." Those remaining on site are being asked to help clean up an area that saw as many as 12,000 residents, visitors and supporters pass through since last summer.

"We are calling you warriors to go in a good way now, and if you have the spirit to fight, turn it to clearing and cleaning the land we have defended, for the sacred act of protecting these waters from the materials left here," the camp said in a statement.

The tribe's action doesn't appear to affect the Sacred Stone Camp, which is located on land owned by LaDonna Brave Bull Allard, a Standing Rock citizen. She said people living on her property will remain as long as the pipeline remains a threat.

"We stand for the water, we stand for healing, we will not back down until our people have healed from the abuse of this world that healing comes from the water," Allard said on Monday as she vowed to maintain the camp until the pipeline is officially defeated.

Allard started the camp in April 2016 with just a handful of residents but with the help of youth and allies on social media, the #NoDAPL movement grew into an international cause in just a few months. The unprecedented level of support prompted the Obama administration to delay the controversial project amid concerns about sacred sites, burial grounds and water resources.

A portion of the 1,172-mile pipeline runs through land that was promised to the Sioux Nation by treaty and Allard's ancestors and family members are among those who are buried within the corridor. The tribe's former historic preservation officer identified significant cultural sites in the area but most of those properties, which are now held by non-Indians, have already been bulldozed by Dakota Access con-

Winnebago Basketball

The dunk known as the "Donkey Dunk" on Maxpreps has made its rounds on Social Media with Frosty Clips getting well over 10,000 views. The dunk was made by Winnebago Senior, #50 David Wingett off a pass from Senior, Cedrick Blackdeer. The photos are courtesy of my Grand daughter and under study, ayez, Tiana Janelle. The Indians won this game against the Blue Devils from Wynot. WHILE: the girls had a tough time with rated, Guardian Angel Cedar Catholic from West Point. The girls hung with them for the first few quarters, but foul trouble put the more experienced players down while the young girls gained some playing time.

ZAGURSKI IS FIRST CONFERENCE CHAMP FOR WRESTLING TEAM

The Winnebago Wrestling team traveled to Winside on Jan 19th for the Lewis and Clark Conference Tourney. The a few wrestlers short on the day had the coaches wondering how it was going to go but the team rallied together to put together one of the best team performances of the year. The Indians finished 5th out of 10 with 100 points with 3 Conference placers. Jeremy Bear at 126 finished in 3rd place. Kiylista Harden finished 3rd at 182 despite a pretty gnarly arm injury. Josh Miles normally at 152 jumped up to 160 seeing a great opportunity and took advantage of it and pinned 3 guys on his way to a 3-1 day to finish as Runner-up at 160. Derrell Zagurski continued his dominance at 285 with 4 pins on the day scoring 34 team points and finished as the 2017 Lewis & Clark Conference Champion at 285.

Derrell is the first Conference Champion in school history. He is 25-6 on the year and has his sights set on qualifying for State. Other wrestlers that competed were 132 Jamisen WolfLeader going 0-4, 138 Tyrese Gorring went 2-2, 195 Nick Painter went 0-4, and Brendan Catches at 220 was 1-3 on the day.

As a result, the firm has all but completed the pipeline except for the crossing at Lake Oahe along the Missouri River, less a half-mile from the Standing Rock reservation border. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers never issued a formal easement for the wealthy backers of the project to build on federally-managed land near the #NoDAPL campsites.

The Department of the Army has since taken the lead on the matter and has initiated an environmental review of the pipeline crossing near Standing Rock. Public comments are now being solicited and meetings are expected in North Dakota as part of the process.

"The Standing Rock Sioux Tribe is grateful to all who have stood with us during our efforts to secure a thorough review of the Dakota Access Pipeline. Because we worked together, the federal government will prepare an environmental impact statement," the tribe's statement on Saturday read. "Moving forward, our ultimate objective is best served by our elected officials, navigating strategically through the administrative and legal processes."

The administrative front includes ensuring that Republican President Donald Trump, who was sworn into office on Friday, does not stop the environmental impact statement, or EIS. His new team, which includes a paid backer of the pipeline supports completion of the project, according to a spokesperson for thegreatagain.gov transition.

It would be difficult, though not impossible, for the Trump administration to pull back the EIS. If that happens, it could open a new front in the ongoing #NoDAPL litigation in federal court.

Dakota Access made a last-minute attempt to block the publication of an important government notice that announced the EIS. But a federal judge rejected the attempt and the document appeared in the Federal Register as scheduled last Wednesday, two days before Trump was sworn in as the 45th president of the United States.

Trump has embraced large-scale infrastructure projects like Dakota Access and vowed to put Americans to work across the nation during his inaugural address on Friday.

"We will build new roads, and highways, and bridges, and airports, and tunnels, and railways all across our wonderful nation," Trump said in his remarks as the U.S. Capitol. "We will get our people off of welfare and back to work – rebuilding our country with American hands and American labor."

Regardless of the path Trump takes, Dakota Access insists it has already been granted approval to finish the pipeline. A federal judge is expected to convene a hearing in February for arguments on the firm's cross-claim regarding the easement at Lake Oahe. A decision could take weeks or longer but there is no timeline for action.

Before Trump came on board, the Department of Justice filed papers dismiss the cross-claim. So did the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe and the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe, which has intervened as part of the ongoing lawsuit.

The two tribes are preparing for additional legal actions in the event the Judge James E. Boasberg allows construction at Lake Oahe. And the firm is expected to fight if the decision doesn't go its way.

The lawsuit already made one trip to the D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals as the tribe sought to halt construction on culturally significant sites. With the work all but finished in those areas, that legal battle is effectively over.

The D.C. Circuit in fact dismissed the appeal in an order on Thursday but opened a different door for the Standing Rock Sioux Tribe. At issue is the Judge Boasberg's September 9, 2016, decision that denied the tribe's request for a preliminary injunction. The higher court said the tribe can seek to have that decision vacated, or removed from the record.

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

Pastor Ricky Jacob

"Why? Why not?"

Have you ever asked yourself 'why?' Why has this happened to me? You have heard that God does not make mistakes and yet stuff happens. In some cases maybe the only answer is 'God only knows.' That knowledge is not very comforting.

Or maybe the other question comes to mind 'why not?' Why not me, why didn't I get the job? Why didn't I find the one who would love and support me and our child(ren)? God only knows, however at times He reveals His good and gracious will to us in spite of our hardships.

Take the story about the young girl who was taken from her family, her tribe, her land in a raid by her tribe's enemies. You would expect her to be bitter, angry and spiteful due to the trauma that she endured through no fault of her own. You might even her to be angry with her Creator. She might have asked the questions 'why? and 'why not?'

Instead, this young girl became even closer to her Creator and trusted in Him all the more. The warrior who 'robbed' her of so much and held her captive could not take away her faith. The faith of this slave girl was evident in that when she saw her master afflicted with a skin disease she had compassion. She said to her master's wife, "if only my master would see the prophet who is in Samaria! He would cure him of his skin disease."

This warrior took heed to this young girl's word and her faith. He traveled a great distance, back to this girl's country land. This victorious and powerful warrior came with his horse and stood outside the door of the prophet's house. The prophet did not come out. Instead the prophet sent a messenger to say to him, "Go, wash yourself seven times in the Jordan, and your flesh will be restored and you will be cleansed."

The warrior took offense at this offer of healing. He is quoted as saying, "I thought that he would surely come out to me and stand and call on the name of the Lord his God, wave his hand over the spot and cure me of my leprosy. Are not Abana and Pharpar, the rivers of Damascus, better than any of the waters of Israel? Couldn't I wash in them and be cleansed?" So he turned and went off in a rage. [2nd Kings 5:11-12 NIV]

In a way this warrior was asking the 'why' and the 'why not' questions. I wonder how many people who are offered to be cleansed by God on a daily basis respond in the same way.

The story does not end here. This warrior's servants go to him and say, "My father, if the prophet had told you to do some great thing, would you not have done it? How much more, then, when he tells you, 'wash and be cleansed'!"

The warrior swallows his self-centered sinful pride and dipped himself in the Jordan seven times, as the man of God had told him, and his flesh was restored and became clean like that of a young boy. [2nd Kings 5:13-14 NIV]

Our Creator continues to use water to cleanse people. One does not have to go to the Jordan to be cleansed. No, as the Creator's Son gave the command to his disciples to go and keep on going in all four directions, baptizing with water in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. The water of baptism cleanses an individual from all sin and restores one's relationship with his/her Creator.

It is at one's baptism, no matter one's tribe, language, or sinful past that our Creator places His name on him or her and is adopted into God's family. There is only One begotten Son of God, Jesus our Savior, all the rest of us have been cleansed by His bloody sacrifice and welcomed into His family.

Why? Often the answer is in our Creator's compassion and grace alone. Why not? God truly knows what is best for you.

Letter To The Editor…

Culinary Arts School

Hocaks do you think a Culinary Arts School in Winnebago is a good idea? It is possible if the young people want it to happen. If you young Bago's would get together and decide you want a culinary school, let the Tribal Council know.

A culinary school here on the rez will be very good for a lot of Hocaks. This will get a lot of students interested. Every year a lot of young people will sign up for the school.

Culinary Arts LPTC sounds good.

P.S. Anyone signing up for Tribal Council elections, what do you think about this?

WinnaVegas Casino Resort

I gave an idea to one of the employees of the WinnaVegas Casino. The idea of a way to advertise our casino. The casino manager does not seem to be interested in it.

The idea is all other casinos do not invest in businesses in the Siouxland area. Winnebago Tribe has been investing for many years. It's like that song years ago, part of it said "All the gold is in California in a bank in someone else's name."

The Winnebago Tribe instead invests in this area. Everyone has seen this over many years. This is something other casinos can not truthfully claim. We can! Why our casino manager does not use this I don't know … why? Whose side is he on anyway?

Thanks, Pat Greyhair
