Indianz.com... Winnebago Tribe works to revitalize Ho-Chunk language for future generations

HoChunk Renaissance program keeps language alive 'We don't have much time, but we're trying to do the best that we can.'
By Kevin Abourezk

WINNEBAGO, Nebraska – She grew up among the pine trees and scrub oak of western Wisconsin, not far from the small town of Black River Falls. Phyllis Armendariz lived the life of a traditional Ho-Chunk girl, speaking only her native language. Often, Armendariz wouldn't need to try to speak English when she visited town because many of the German shop keepers there could speak Ho-Chunk, a language that sounded much like her own. She didn't even begin learning English until she was in first grade. And it wasn't easy for the shy Ho-Chunk girl to learn the strange new language. "I was self-conscious about it," she said. "I tried to make myself as little as I could so the teacher wouldn't call on me. I think I was in the third grade before I finally felt comfortable." Armed with the language of her people's colonizers, the bright Ho-Chunk girl went off in search of her education, eventually earning a Bachelor of Science degree and an education degree. Recently, the now 82-year-old Armendariz was asked to come to the Winnebago Reservation in northeastern Nebraska to teach the Ho-Chunk language to the Winnebago Tribe, who shared the same ancestors as her tribe. The Winnebago people were separated from their Wisconsin relatives after the government forcibly moved them to Nebraska. Kathy LaRose, a language teacher for the HoChunk Renaissance program, instructs language apprentices and staff members in the program's building in Winnebago, Nebraska. Photo by Kevin Abourezk. Craig "Tunny" Cleveland Jr., a language apprentice, raises his hand to answer language teacher Kathy LaRose's question at the HoChunk Renaissance building in Winnebago, Nebraska. Photo by Kevin Abourezk. Generations of federal assimilation initiatives – such as the efforts of educators in boarding schools like the Genoa Indian Industrial School in Nebraska who punished Native children for speaking their Native languages – had left the Winnebago people with few fluent Ho-Chunk speakers. Armendariz agreed, becoming a language teacher for the Winnebago

Tribe's language revitalization program, HoChunk Renaissance. She has become part of an effort to revitalize the Ho-Chunk language and culture among the Winnebago people. It's an effort that faces many obstacles, said Bleu St. Cyr, director of HoChunk Renaissance. Nearly a decade ago, the Winnebago Tribe conducted an unofficial survey to find out how many fluent Ho-Chunk speakers still lived on the tribe's reservation. The tribe found just 15 fluent speakers at that time, and several of those speakers have since died, St. Cyr said. "We don't have much time, but we're trying to do the best that we can," the 31-year-old said. The tribe began language revitalization efforts in the 1990s and founded the HoChunk Renaissance program in 2003. The program began with just one employ. Today, it employs 17 people, including four fluent Ho-Chunk speakers, four language apprentices who are learning from the fluent speakers and support staff. The program is funded primarily by tribal allocations, primarily via revenue from the tribe's for-profit enterprises, including the WinnaVegas Casino Resort and Ho-Chunk Inc., the tribe's economic development corporation. St. Cyr has served as director for three years and served a media specialist for the program before that. He said he hopes to combine technology into the program's language revitalization efforts.

Thoughts on a House or Halfway House...

By Lance Morgan

hurts because they are so hard to get in the first place.

We needed clarification from the Tribe on the ICDBG grant and who was going to apply for it. I wasn't at the meeting so some of this is what I learned from people who attended the meeting. One council person was totally into the idea of building a new half way house for $1.2 million. The tribe had previously decided to apply for a $400,000 grant and was $800,000 short and applying for the ICDBG made sense to fund the gap. I get the need for a new halfway house, but I wanted to share some more information.

The Tribe applied to renovate the halfway house a few years ago and it didn't get enough points to be awarded the grant. Also, Housing recently did some testing for Meth and the majority of the houses tested came back positive. The people will likely be evicted soon and their homes boarded up. It could cost up to $50,0000 a home to remediate each one.

So let me put this all together for you. We already have well over 200 people on various housing waiting lists. There already are a ton of homes boarded up due to damage and the cost and time associated with getting them renovated. We are about to perhaps double the number of homes being boarded up in our community-- making a whole lot of families homeless due to the Meth issues.

In the meantime, we are set to graduate 150 young people in the next three years all of who will need a place to live soon. But we choose to apply for a low probability Halfway house project for the ICDBG. I believe the Halfway house will provide 6 or 8 rooms for people transitioning back into our community.

I was disappointed to not be able to build the new Human Services building, but I understand the desperate need for housing renovations. I do not understand taking a big chance on the Halfway house project at the expense of housing renovations. I am not against the Halfway house project, but I just find it hard to believe it would take priority over fixing up dozens of homes especially given the coming housing crisis. Sadly, I predict that we are about to have a lot more homeless families soon, but what do I know.

Contact me at hochunk@aol.com

I thought I would give you guys a little insight on how things have been going lately. Last fall I met with some of the department heads of the Tribe and they asked that we help them plan, find money and build a new Human Services building. We met with an architect to design a building and got cost estimates. We even picked out a site in the Ho-Chunk Village. We figured we needed to at least get one major grant to make it happen.

The biggest grant is the Indian Community Development Block Grant ("ICDBG"). The new building was going to cost $2.4 million to build. The ICDBG was for approximately $1 million. We also lucked out and got some New Market Tax credits of about $5 million, which net another $1 million for the new building and some other smaller projects in town. The Human Services building would have gotten about $1.5 million of its $2.4 million cost and another $500,000 would have gone to more solar energy and additional rental housing. This would have been enough to get the new building built.

The ICDBG is due to come out soon, but I heard a rumor that tribal housing needed to apply for the grant to renovate the rainbow housing project. Over the last 15 years, the major entities in the tribe rotate applying for the ICDBG and this year it was apparently Housing's turn. It is hard to argue against renovating housing. So all our work on the Human Services building was probably going to be wasted, which is too bad because saying no to $5 million in New Market Tax credits

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

Pastor Ricky Jacob

"I AM the Life!"

We held our 20th preschool graduation at the Winnebago Veteran's Building on May 10th. Special thanks to the Winnebago Veteran's Association & American Legion Post #363 LaMere/Greencrow/Rice and God bless you and your families, as well as those currently serving in our armed forces!

Yes, 20 years of offering preschool classes to the Winnebago community and beyond. Over these twenty years we have shared the love of Jesus as Lord and Savior with 174 students, 76 of whom have graduated. We have taught them the 10 Commandments, the Apostles' Creed, and what I refer to as the Spiritual Warrior's Prayer (a.k.a. the Lord's Prayer) both in English as well sung in Ho-Chunk.

Thirty-seven students were welcomed into God's family through the water of Holy Baptism and had the name of Creator God - Father, Son and Holy Spirit place on them. Their sins were washed away as Mauna adopted them into His ever extending family. Four students have gone on to confirm their faith in what Creator God did at their baptism and as long as they remain faithful are assured of life everlasting.

One part of our preschool graduation service included the children acting out the book entitled, 'Don't Let the Pigeon Drive the Bus!' by Mo Willems. The children taught their parents, grandparents, families and friends that they could say 'NO' to the Pigeon. The back cover of the book reads: 'Finally, a book you can say 'no' to!'

All too often we parents, grandparents, teachers, etc. GIVE IN to the child's requests, demands, pleading and say 'YES.' Or we GIVE UP and say 'O.K.' Unfortunately this is not in the best interests of the child as he or she learns how to get one's way. This often leads them to GIVING IN to temptation, or GIVING UP on God or tragically even on Life itself.

Listen to the greatest teacher of all time and learn: [Jesus said:] "The thief does not come except to steal, and to kill, and to destroy. I have come that they may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly." [St. John 10:10]

All too often the thief comes and robs us of the life that Creator God would have us live now and even more importantly in His new heavens and new earth. The thief is none other than that lying devil. He does not want God's will to be done or His kingdom come to you or your child.

Our theme verse for the 2017-2018 preschool year was: Jesus said to them, "I AM the Way, and the Truth, and the Life. No one comes to the Father except through me." John chapter 14, verse six. Jesus is the Life. Jesus gave up his life as he suffered and died in the place of each and every sinner. Jesus forgives sinners and desires that we have life more abundantly now. That is our prayer for each and every child that attends our church, preschool, Sunday school, Kidz Bible Adventure Hour or Vacation Bible School [July 15th-18th].

Each and every Sunday Creator God offers you Life received through faith and the blessings offered at His Divine Service held at Jesus Our Savior Lutheran Church at 11 a.m., preceded by the study of God's Word at 10. Or attend one our Raising Up Spiritual Warrior classes to learn more about the teachings of Creator God, held on Wednesday evenings at 6 p.m.

What is keeping you from the abundant life that Jesus is offering you?

SUICIDE IN INDIAN COUNTRY PART 18

CALLING FROM THE RIM: SUICIDAL BEHAVIOR AMONG AMERICAN INDIAN AND ALASKA NATIVE ADOLESCENTS

In the cultural beliefs of Indian/Native nations, the spiritual philosophy concerning one's purpose and existence on this earth is found in his/her relationship to the world and everything in it. This relationship is the gift of the Great Spirit. As children, we were taught that everything around you, the earth and all the natural elements of life, is related. Symbols such as the circle depict this philosophy, permeate every aspect of Indian/Native culture, and are considered sacred. The circle is especially significant: Within it walk the four winds and therein dwell the spirits of the four directions. These spirits are the guardians who direct us on the pathway of life. The horizontal edge of the circle is as far as one's eye can perceive and represents the rim of the world. Beyond it is known only to our Creator. The present generation of Indian/Native youth live within a duality of philosophies- those of non-Indian societies and Indian/Native societies. They are caught between two worlds - that of modern, sophisticated technology and the center-of-life philosophy of Indian/Native nations. This dilemma can create barriers and impede natural growth and learning processes as children attempt to cope with their uniqueness. Often the results are feelings and actions of helplessness and despair. Our children are "calling from the rim" Let us heed this call, work together, and find better ways to nurture them and those who follow. Therefore, we honor both worlds. We honor life.

"As a younger man coming to the program and growing up and seeing all the technology, one of my goals was to influence and bring together technology and language," he said.

The program recently launched a language app and a language book with words, phrases, translated songs and new Ho-Chunk words.

St. Cyr said developing a curriculum to teach the Winnebago people their language has been difficult as the HoChunk Renaissance program has struggled to find a university-educated language teacher.

Most years, the program teaches students in grades kindergarten through high school. However, this year, the program decided to focus on students in grades kindergarten-second grade and high school in order to give its apprentices more time to learn the language themselves.

"Otherwise, our apprentices were teaching in the school system and we're not learning," St. Cyr said.

The program plans to offer an eight-week adult language course starting at the end of May and plans to publish three children's books. The program also has considered creating a language immersion school.

"We have to make everything from scratch," St. Cyr said. "So that takes time to develop that."

The program currently has an agreement with the Ho-Chunk Nation in Wisconsin to share language learning materials, including a dictionary that the Ho-Chunk Nation created.

The Ho-Chunk language is spoken nearly identical by both tribes, though each tribe has developed newer terms on its own, St. Cyr said.

He said HoChunk Renaissance is trying to ensure the survival of the Winnebago Tribe's history and culture.

"Identity is very important because one day you're going to be asked, 'What do you know about your culture? What do you know about your history, your language?'" he said. "The grandchildren, the children are going to ask you one day, 'Who am I?'"

A major obstacle to the HoChunk Renaissance program's efforts is the short amount of time it is allowed to teach children in the schools in Winnebago, including Winnebago Public School and St. Augustine Indian Mission.

The program's teachers are given just 30 minutes a week to teach individual kindergarten through second-grade classes at St. Augustine and just 50 minutes each week to teach individual classes at Winnebago Public School.

Mary Merrick, one of the program's language teachers, said the program was once given 30 minutes each day to teach individual second- through fourth-grade classes as recently as recently as three years ago.

"We need more time," she said. "We definitely need more time with them."

The HoChunk Vocab Builder is available on iTunes and Google Play

Despite the time constraints, Merrick said it is rewarding to be able to teach her tribe's children their native language.

She described a particularly fulfilling experience she once had teaching a little boy who struggled with the language all year. Finally, on the last day of school, as students took turns reading a sentence written in Ho-Chunk on the chalk board and explaining its meaning, the little boy succeeded in reading and explaining the sentence without any help.

"I was so happy," Merrick said. "I enjoy teaching them because when they finally get it, it's really rewarding for them to finally grasp it."

Ho-Chunk Language Course

The HoChunk Renaissance program will host an eight-week language course for adults May 23-June 11 in the program's offices at 907 N. Mission Drive, in Winnebago, Nebraska.

The Hoi't'e Coni na ("first language") course will include lectures and interactive and immersion activities. The course will offer beginner-level instruction on topics such as name, age, places and question types. Participants will learn to read, write and speak the HoChunk language.

The course will serve as a pilot program for future adult language courses and will be offered on Wednesday evenings from 6-8 p.m. It will be offered to 12 students, and those wishing to participate must register by 4 p.m. May 18 at the HoChunk Renaissance office.

HOUSING UPDATES:

The Winnebago Housing and Development Commission (WHDC) Board of Directors are Jeanie Eagle, Chairperson, Isaac Smith, Vice-Chairman, Coly Brown, Leilla Logan, Louis La Rose and Sarah Snake.

The Board has authorized staff to perform a "meth swipe test" in every room of a rental unit, during the annual physical and housekeeping inspection.

Be advised that the meth tests are sent to a laboratory for analysis. Any test result that is positive for meth, and over the level of 1.50 is going to result in a Notice of Termination of the Lease.

The WHDC is hopeful that this a significant step towards removing the use of this dangerous drug in the Winnebago Community.

This illegal chemical is dangerous to the individuals using it. Meth is dangerous and harmful to the users' family members, especially children and the elderly, and can cause death much sooner than many other illegal substances.

The WHDC is responsible for the damages to the physical house; "clean-up" of meth is costly. The unit must remain vacant until the clean-up is done; more houses will be boarded up. Projections on the cost of clean-up for a 2 bedroom unit can be at least $20,000.

The choice to use any drug is made by the user. Studies state that this is one of the most difficult addiction to overcome.

Those that have not used meth, be aware and "don't go there".

Native Students' College Vision Quest

Native Students' College Vision Quest (NSCVQ) provides Winnebago Public School (WPS) students in grades 5th through 8th with an introduction to college and career readiness via classes in culture, careers, and academics.

During the 2017-2018 academic year, NSCVQ offered introductory to financial literacy classes utilizing an online program called, EverFi. Later, in conjunction with the Omaha Nation Community Response Team (ONCRT) we began Oweesta Financial Literacy courses. Students received education in budgeting, advertising, economics, and consumerism. Their incentive for participation and good behavior included a $50.00 gift card to Walmart.

Throughout the year, NSCVQ activities included moccasin making, beading, and ribbon work skirts. Classes were supervised by Sasha Rivers, NSCVQ Education Specialist, while Tamela "Tammy" Haskell instructed with the aid of elder, Natalie Earth.

Field trips included the Henry Pay-er, Jr. art exhibit at the Great Plains Art Museum in Lincoln, Nebraska. For some students, this was their first professional art gallery experience. Afterwards students were treated to Pizza Hut and given rides home.

In April and May, NSCVQ partnered with the Little Priest Tribal College (LPTC) for an event; LPTC Campus Scouts. Students visited the LPTC campus, participated in a campus tour, ice breaker, activities, and earned the chance to win incentives. Incentives rewarded students on good behavior, listening skills, participation, and leadership. Students who won received gift cards to the Dollar General, Wal-Mart, or the Heritage Store and a certificate.

For our last day of the school year, all 5th through 8th grade students were treated to a pizza party at the WPS lunch room. Pizza was catered by 1000 Degrees Pizza. Students will receive their $50.00 Wal-Mart gift cards for their ONCRT Oweesta participation at the 2018 Honoring the Youth Achievements Pow-wow held Thursday, May 24th at the Winnebago Public School gym.

As this school year comes to a close, NSCVQ will continue with events and activities into the summer and next school year. Make sure your 5th - 8th grader gets involved by contacting Sasha Rivers, NSCVQ Education Specialist, at 402-878-2631 or email her at sasha.rivers@winnebagotribe.com. Her office is located at the Higher Education Offices in Winnebago, Nebraska.

Little Priest Tribal College New Head Men's Basketball Coach

Michael Hadley was born with basketball flowing through his veins in Elkhart, Indiana. Hadley has played, coached and refereed basketball for 30 plus years and doesn't plan on stopping anytime soon.

Michael is alumni of North Carolina Central University, graduating in 2000 with a degree in Recreation Administration. Hadley played basketball at NCCU where he led the team in scoring and was named MVP. From 2000 - 2008, he continued onto the D-League, overseas and semi-pro basketball playing for organizations such as the USBL, ABA, PBL and the USA Select Team in 2004-2005. While playing overseas, Hadley helped his team win both the IBL and DBL championships in China.

Michael began his coaching career at Laurinburg Institute Prep, leading them to a championship as well as winning the Alaska High School shoot-out in the same year. He has also coached and was the Head of Player personnel for the Michiana Monarchs ABA team from 2014 - 2016. In 2017 Michael was found running his own traveling basketball team, QC Soul and also assistant coached for Pure Prep Basketball Academy. Coach Hadley is also a former co-owner of Optimum One, a personal training service to elite and professional basketball players that emphasizes on improving their strength and conditioning skills.

To expand on his passion for helping youth, he accepted a job working at Arrowhead Residential Facility, where helped "at risk" youth become productive and responsible young adults through counseling, education and social services. Hadley is still working to assist kids in reaching their goals in life through basketball and education and is excited about his upcoming role at Little Priest Tribal College.

Some players that Coach Hadley has coached, trained and mentored over the years include, but are not limited to: Shawn Williams (Memphis), Antonio Anderson (Memphis), Tyrone Downie (Wake Forest), Jamel White (Nebraska), Chris Jackson (LSU), Troy Jackson (Alcorn State), Kareem Cooper (UTEP), Quantez Robertson (Auburn), Jonathan Moore (NCCU), David Young (NCCU), Jonathan Watts (NCU), David Nowell (NCU), Xavier Foster (La Lumiere Indiana), Marlon Stewart (North Dakota), Kyrel Hanks (Sioux City West), Tymon Vesey (Davenport), Aston Dulin (Malone-U, Canton Ohio), Taylor Robinson (Chicago State University) and his son, Atticus Tayler (Southwest CC).

Coach Hadley, along with his fiancé Ronisha Marshall have 6 children they cannot wait to contribute to the growing program of Little Priest!

Little Priest Tribal College New Men's assistant basketball coach

Coach Sams spent several years coaching high school boys basketball at schools such as Iowa City Regina in Iowa City, Iowa, as well as Roosevelt and East High Schools in Des Moines, Iowa. He also has extensive experience at the AAU level with programs throughout Iowa. Most recently, Coach Sams coached, and was then promoted to program director, at Pure Prep Academy in Des Moines. While in this role, the program experienced great success, including multiple winning seasons for the first time in over ten years.

Originally from Washington DC, Coach Sams played basketball at Dunbar High, one of the top high school programs in the country. After winning a high school championship, as well as being given all metro honors, he continued his basketball at Southeastern Community College in Burlington, Iowa. Averaging 23 points and 10 rebounds per game, Sams was also named to the third team all NJCAA his first year, and first team all NJCAA his second year. He went on to play at Drake University in Des Moines, where he became one of the top players in the Missouri Valley Conference. Coach Sams was selected by the coaches and media to the Missouri Valley Conference first team offensive and defensive teams. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in sociology, with a minor in communication, from Drake. For the twelve years following his graduation, Coach Sams played professionally both overseas and in the states.

Native community vows to hold Nebraska responsible

'We do not go away': Native community protests racism and aggression
Posted: Monday, May 14, 2018

'You know why? Because we do not go away'
By Kevin Abourezk

Native people are continuing to call for justice following a series of incidents they say demonstrate racism and aggression on the part of Nebraska law enforcement and state officials.

Nearly 65 Native people and supporters gathered on the steps of the Nebraska State Capitol in Lincoln on Saturday seeking accountability for actions against Native people.

Leo Yankton, a 42-year-old Oglala Sioux man, said police aggression has cost at least one life in the past year and left several Native people in Nebraska wounded with broken limbs and gunshot wounds.

"At times, it has felt like open season on Native people, as we have become the targets of overzealous police officers who see us as expendable and powerless and state officials and federal agents who see our hard-won revenue sources as treasures to be plundered," he said.

Yankton – a co-host for Indianz.Com's Indian Times podcast – organized Saturday's rally after his cousin, Lavan Yankton Jr., was run over by a police SUV on April 27 after running from police.

Lavan Yankton was wanted on three warrants – including two for domestic assault and one for failure to appear in court – and was found by police that morning.

Leo Yankton said he sued the Lincoln Police Department after an August 2017 incident in which two officers entered his home looking for Lavan Yankton but found instead his 14-year-old cousin, who they marched outside wearing only her underwear.

He said the two officers became irate when he questioned them about why they were detaining his cousin, and they handcuffed him and cited him for interfering with a police investigation, a charge that was later dropped.

"And so it was that nearly eight months after that incident the Lincoln Police Department finally caught up to my cousin Lavan in an alley in south Lincoln," Leo Yankton said. "Just as Lavan had feared, his arrest didn't come without great pain."

Indianz.Com Video by Kevin Abourezk: Calling for Justice in Nebraska Leo Yankton also shared the story of Zachary Bear Heels, a 29-year-old Rosebud Sioux man who died after Omaha police officer Scotty Payne shocked him a dozen times and officer Ryan McClarty punched him 13 times.

Bear Heels, who was unarmed but suffered from bipolar disorder and schizophrenia, had been acting erratically on June 5, 2017, when police were called.

Payne and McClarty now face assault charges.

"A man – known to be mentally ill – is beaten and Tased by officers until he dies," Leo Yankton said. "Two other officers stand by and watch, and the worst charge any of them face is assault?" He also shared the story of a 44-year-old Rosebud Sioux woman, Destiny Whitemagpie, who had her arm broken after police came to her apartment investigating a domestic disturbance involving her and her boyfriend.

The officers arrested Destiny's boyfriend and attempted to arrest Destiny, who asked them why she was being detained. One of the officers began pushing Destiny's arm up behind her back with such force that it broke her elbow, he said.

"And so it was that this Lakota mother on her way to work one morning had her arm broken by the very officer who had come to her apartment to ensure her safety," Leo Yankton said. "All because she asked him why she was being arrested. It seems Lincoln police don't like being questioned. Believe me, I know."

Michelle Free LaMere, a citizen of the Winnebago Tribe, said she witnessed the January 30 raid by federal agents on the offices of Ho-Chunk Inc., her tribe's economic development corporation.

She said she watched agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives load dozens of boxes of documents and products related to the corporation's tobacco distribution enterprise into U-Hauls and semitrailers.

The Winnebago Tribe has said it believes the state of Nebraska requested that the ATF conduct the raid in order to provide the state advantage in a tax dispute between the state and the tribe related to tobacco sales.

"Because of their actions there, they scared away a lot of the distributors so the sales went down," Free LaMere said. "People lost their jobs."

She called on Native people to seek political office and vote.

"We need to get on the schools boards," she said. "We need to get on the county commission boards. We need to start running for office outside the reservation."

Karin Eagle, a media relations specialist for the Oglala Sioux Tribe, said she has long feared allowing her son to walk the streets of Rapid City, South Dakota, a city that she said has become notorious for the aggressive behavior of its police toward Native people.

"I told my son how to walk down the streets, who to walk down the street with, how many people are allowable to walk down the street with," she said. "I was told it's not that bad. I said, 'I buried two relatives within five years because the police weren't that bad.'"

She said she traveled with her children to Lincoln from the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in order to show solidarity for those being oppressed and harassed by Nebraska authorities. "Back home on your reservations, you better believe people are listening," she said. "They're paying attention now to what's happening in Nebraska."

Frank LaMere, a Winnebago activist, said he has worked in recent months to ensure Nebraska leaders don't forget what their police and political leaders have done to Native people.

"Nothing changes unless somebody is made to feel uncomfortable," he said. "Nothing changes until we make ourselves uncomfortable."

And he criticized Nebraska for allowing itself to be used by major tobacco corporations to intimidate the Winnebago Tribe into giving the state a portion of its tobacco and distribution revenue. He said the raid on the tribe's economic development corporation in January was the result of the state and big tobacco companies seeking to force the tribe to participate in an agreement between 46 states and the five largest tobacco companies.

"We took them on at Whiteclay for 20 years. We did not go away," he said. "We took on big alcohol and we kicked their ass."

"Now Nebraska gets together, jumps in bed with big tobacco, and we'll kick their ass, too, if we have to. You know why? Because we do not go away."

Want to save a million $

In writing this article I'm mindful of the fact I'm 1/9 of this Council and that which I am writing. In other words what said of one is said of all, and the membership can put us in our respective categories.

It seems like recent council meetings (last 7 months or so) have been nothing but opportunities for the audience to bash the Tribal Council. Comments like, "we're your boss, we put you in there, you do what we say, I wouldn't have voted for you if I knew this is what I was getting, you should be on the job earning your wages, how can you serve the people when your not on the job." No transparency, no meetings, a 5-signature council, and the list goes on, with no let up in sight.

I'm convinced there is a solution to all of this. Knowing that it could affect me the next time I come up for election, but it's okay, if I believe in the solution, I should be willing to accept the results.

This solution is not new in that it came up when Brian Chamberlain was the Tribe's Treasurer and again by Lance Morgan in a recent WIN news article. Here's how they presented it then, and how I present it now.

Reduce the Tribal Council members from 9 to 7. We are a small tribe and don't have enough work for nine members, sitting in an office for 8 hours (if that) with nothing to do can make for a long day.

The four officers should be salaried and elected to those positions by the people, the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer. The three others should receive a stipend for meetings attended or other assignments.

There are additional details that would have to be worked out to insure maximum efficiency for a different reorganized governing body.

If we were to make this happen, you're talking about a million dollar savings to this tribe. Imagine what that money could be used for. It's not a long drawn out process, a vote of membership to amend the Constitution to read from nine council members to seven members, with officers receiving a salary and members receiving stipends is all it would take. Could happen as soon as the people want to start saving money for other purposes.

Trauma Informed Psychological First Aid (PFA)

Thurs. June 7th 8-4pm
Little Priest Tribal College Elk Clan Auditorium

What is PFA?

Psychological First Aid (PFA) is an evidence-informed modular approach for assisting children, adolescents, adults, and families in the immediate aftermath of disaster and terrorism. PFA is designed to reduce the initial distress caused by traumatic events, and to foster short- and long-term adaptive functioning. Principles and techniques of PFA meet four basic standards: (1) consistent with research evidence on risk and resilience following trauma; (2) applicable and practical in field settings; (3) appropriate to developmental level across the lifespan; and (4) culturally informed.

Who is PFA For?

PFA intervention strategies are intended for use with children, adolescents, parents/caretakers, families, and adults.

Who Delivers PFA?

PFA is designed for delivery by mental health specialists who provide acute assistance to affected children and families as part of an organized disaster response effort. These specialists may be imbedded in a variety of response units, including first responder teams, incident command systems, primary and emergency health care providers, school crisis response teams, faith-based organizations, Community Emergency Response Teams (CERT), Medical Reserve Corps, the Citizens Corps, and disaster relief organizations.

Please RSVP to Donna Wolff, Native Connections Project Coordinator, email donna.wolff@ihs.gov or call 1-402-878-3659 by Monday June 4th. Lunch provided.

SPRING!
Is here should we cheer?
Should we cry like a butterfly?
I love spring, don't you?
You can play in the sunny sun,
isn't it just so fun, fun, fun.
Flowers grow, trees grow, winter falls, winds blow.
Bees buzz, kids play, say HOORAY!!
SPRING IS HERE TODAY!

I believe we should help the earth because we live on it. To help the world we can pick up garbage. Don't Litter. You can recycle cans, pop bottles, and many more. You also get something out of it. You can use a cross walk. That is some stuff you can do to help the Earth.

Persayus Lyons-4th Grade-Mrs Falkner's Class

I recycle and I pick up my trash to be less than alot of trash. I would be kind and be respectful to one another. I respect my Earth or I would not be here. I want to be smart with the Earth and be more careful with Earth. Earth is MY home and I respect my home. It is where you make choices in life. I love earth because it is beautiful and it is where Native people lived on the land and near lakes. This is why I love the Earth it is natural.

Junius Snowball-5th Grade- Mrs Lecher's Class

See a lot of animals are going extinct and a few of them are because of not recycling. Reusing can make it way easier to make stuff because we could use stuff from past projects. Littering is bad because if some of that trash gets into the ocean than a few sea animals will die. Recycle so we don't have to get new material because a lot of things are going to waste. Stop littering because it can harm animals and sea animals too. Reuse stuff because if you need wood getting it might lead to deforestation for little critters. So recycling stuff and reusing stuff is good because if you have a old trailer or something broken down you can make some thing new with it.
