Kitcheyan Named to 40 under 40 Class

The National Center for American Indian Enterprise Development has announced Victoria Kitcheyan of the Winnebago Tribe among its 2018 class of "Native American 40 Under 40" award recipients. Kitcheyan is a Councilmember at the Winnebago Tribe of Nebraska. Her leadership has been especially critical this past year as the Tribe successfully assumed management of the former Indian Health Service Hospital. Nominated by members of their communities, this prestigious award is bestowed to individuals under the age of 40 who have demonstrated leadership, initiative, and dedication and have made significant contributions in business and their community. The National Center is celebrating the 10th anniversary of these awards. Award winners will be honored at the River Spirit Casino Resort in Tulsa, Okla. on October 29 and 30. The event - "Impacting Generations: Honoring a Decade of Exceptional Service and Leadership" - will be held in conjunction with the National Center's next Native Edge Institute (NEI), a one-day training session focused specifically on procurement. Leaders recognized have backgrounds including business, academia, healthcare, tribal government, politics, non-profits, journalism, the law, finance and marketing. On behalf of the Winnebago Tribe, we'd like to say congratulations, Tori!

Indianz.com... Ponca Tribe sets November 1 opening for long-awaited casino

Monday, October 29, 2018
The Ponca Tribe is opening its long-awaited gaming facility in Iowa on Thursday, November 1. The Prairie Flower Casino is located in Carter Lake, Iowa. The 9,500-square-foot features 200 Class II electronic machines and a snack bar and will be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The facility is named in memory of Prairie Flower, who was a daughter of famed Chief Standing Bear. She died on the Ponca Trail of Tears in 1877, when the federal government forced the tribe out of Nebraska.

We continue to make progress as we move closer to opening. The parking lot is starting to take shape today!

Standing Bear and his band were allowed to stay in Nebraska after he won a landmark court ruling on behalf of all Native Americans. But less a century later, the federal government terminated its relationship with his descendants and dissolved their lands.

The tribe was eventually restored to recognition in 1990 and is able to acquire lands in Nebraska and Iowa to rebuild its home base. The site in Carter Lake is part of that restoration effort.

Despite the expected opening, the states of Iowa and Nebraska, along with the city of Council Bluffs in Iowa, are suing the federal government in hopes of derailing the casino. They claim the tribe does not qualify to have its lands restored under the provisions of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

The Trump administration filed an answer to the complaint on April 27, rejecting the claims made in the original complaint, which was filed solely by the city of Council Bluffs. The two states were allowed to intervene later on.

There has been no significant movement in the case as the opening date has approached. The federal magistrate assigned to the matter even rejected an attempt by Nebraska to expedite some motions but said there was no reason to do so. Briefing otherwise doesn't close until December 7 -- long after the casino will be operation.

The tribe is not a party to the litigation but has filed an Downloadamicus, or friend of the court, brief. The tribe is calling on the judge to reject the opponents' claims. "The Ponca Tribe has deep historic ties to land in Iowa, Nebraska, and South Dakota, where it lived peace-

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

"The Unholy Trinity - Part 2"

About a month ago I wrote an article regarding the Unholy Trinity that was based on a book by Michael Lockwood. You will recall that the Unholy Trinity is 'Me, Myself, and I.'

Now I would like to focus our attention on this quote by Lockwood: 'What a burden it is to have to secure my earthly wellbeing by the strength of my own arm!' In other words, 'I've got this.'

In Luther's explanation to the first commandment: 'You shall have no gods before Me' he writes: "We should fear, love and trust in God above all things." One of the ways we break this command of God is to place ourselves above our Creator.

There are two main ways we turn ourselves into idols in relation to our Creator. First, we can love ourselves above everything else, so that we seek our own wellbeing above all, and use everything including God to serve ourselves. In other words, it is all about me and my happiness. My own desire to be served and to have my desires and wants met come at the expense of others.

I might even be tempted to tell God that unless I get my way I will not talk to Him (pray) or accept His gracious invitation to come to His house (church); or to thank Him (praise); or to trust in Him (faith).

Second, we can trust in ourselves above everything else, so that we rely on our own ability to secure the good things of life instead of trusting in the Lord to provide' (43-44). In our prideful ways we are tempted to think that we can do things all by ourselves, thank you very much. We often take credit for who we are or what we can do or the skills or talents. The 'my, myself and I' syndrome cuts out the One who has blessed us with these gifts.

Luther's call to trust in our heavenly Father as the source of every good gift--not only when it comes to our salvation, but also in our earthly lives--is a radical challenge to our modern [Promethean] age, with its idolization of human power.

I end with the quote of Lockwood that I began and then add his Gospel quote as well: 'What a burden it is to have to secure my earthly wellbeing by the strength of my own arm! How liberating to know that God the Father will provide for me, and to trust in his power in his power.'

Or put another way: 'I cannot by my own reason or strength believe in Jesus Christ, my Lord, or come to Him; but the Holy Spirit has called me by the Gospel, enlightened me with His gifts, sanctified and kept me in the true faith.'

In the same way He calls, gathers, enlightens, and sanctifies the whole Christian Church on earth, and keeps it with Jesus Christ in the one true faith.

In this Christian Church He daily and richly forgives all my sins and the sins of all believers.

On the Last Day He will raise me and all the dead, and give eternal life to me and all believers in Christ. This is most certainly true.' [Luther's explanation to the Third Article of the Apostles' Creed].

Note well who does the all of the verbs. Answer: 'God, and God alone!'

Thoughts on a Good Idea...

By Lance Morgan

don't begrudge someone getting paid I suppose, but it struck me as an unusual way to get a job, and will likely create some awkward obligations going forward.

I have written a few times that we should change how we elect the tribal council. I won't go into detail again, but I think we should directly elect our officers. I would like to vote on our Chairperson, Vice-Chair, Treasurer and Secretary.

As I have stated before, the other 5 tribal council members could just work their normal job and get paid by the meeting, which would save about $400,000 per year. I have noticed a few other people writing in the W.I.N. and on Facebook with similar ideas, so maybe the time has come. A perfect example was set by newly elected Mel Frenchman who said he wouldn't take the pay and then left the council meeting because he said he had some trim work to do on a house!

I haven't done a top ten list in over a year because I have been crabby, but I am back.

Top Ten List of Where Not to Take a Woman on a First Date on the Rez!

10. Tribal Council Meeting
9. Bingo at WinnaVegas, unless you are sure she is into it.
8. Teasers and/or Mavericks
7. Your work potluck lunch, especially if you ask her to make something for you.
6. Chilling in your car watching Netflix in your neighbor's driveway so you can use their Wi-Fi.
5. There will be no luck for you if you take her to the Lucky 77 Casino.
4. Don't go anyplace you have to use the Tribal Transport Bus to get to.
3. Anyplace you might be tempted to try and pay with EBT.
2. Your mom's basement.
1. Your kid's birthday party at your ex's house.

I didn't write a column the last edition because I was traveling, but I wanted to share my thoughts on the swearing-in ceremony for our new council members and the yearly reorganization where they select the Tribal Officers. It was really weird to watch. It was like watching a movie that you hadn't seen before but had already figured out the ending.

There were no speeches given. No one stated their qualifications or advocated for the people they nominated. It was all done in what seemed like the fastest way possible and by secret ballot. The ballots hardly needed to be secret. The outcome was obviously pre-ordained. There was clearly a 5 to 4 split on the council because I believe all the officers, but one was selected by that margin.

There must have been a private meeting before the public one because no one barely said a word. I suppose that is politics to some extent, but it struck me as a very bad way to select our top leaders. The officer's also make about $20,000 more than the other council members, so it is a kind of unspoken thing that if you vote for me then I will vote for you and we all essentially give ourselves a raise. I

"Thank the entire Student Body..."

It is with a happy heart and a pure appreciation that I am writing this letter today. Leyten Savon Kearnes, first born son of Cain Kearnes and Trina Solomon was crowned 2018 Winnebago Homecoming King Wednesday evening 10/03/18. Leyten has been a student of Winnebago Public his entire Elementary, Junior High and High School career.

At the age of 6 Leyten was diagnosed with Autism and unbeknownst to him, that definition never stopped him from trying to be a bright and effervescent face within the halls at his school. Depending on the event and scenario Leyten would greet anyone with a "HI", a handshake or a hug. He's always been the biggest supporter of his younger brother Lourde and Sister Lakaylah as well as the numerous relatives he has watched at the games he has attended. You knew how proud he is of his siblings when you could hear him saying, "That's MY Brother", or "That's MY Sister." One proud Winnebago Indians Student, Fan and now KING to the entire school where he not only gives his all but enjoys being a part of.

So, on behalf of his Father Cain, Brother Lourde, and Sisters, Lakaylah, Loyal-Lee, Lovely and I, his mother Trina, we'd like to thank the entire Student body of Winnebago Public School, it's staff and all those Leyten encounters daily. It was a moment none of us will ever soon forget. A true testament to the values our young people must see that our son not only deserved this one moment to shine but to let the entire community know how truly special Leyten is to everyone.

When Good People Do Nothing

As I write this article I am mindful of the fact that I am one-ninth part of this council, its subject matter and where we go from here. At first I didn't want to put this article in the WIN news because I don't like to air our laundry to the public, but our tribal members living off the reservation have every right to know what this tribal council is doing in their best or worst interest.

Last Friday the tribal council held an organizational review of all the programs it oversees and made appointments to the various committees and boards. When it came to the HCI board, there were three (3) council members interested in being a board member. Since there were three, the process required a nomination procedure just like we do when electing officers to the council. This did not happen according to Robert's Rules of Order and our by-laws. Instead, Coly immediately made a motion to appoint Roland Warner to the board, seconded by Jim. This did not allow Tori Kitcheyan or Mel Frenchman the opportunity to even be considered. Jim, Coly and Roland voted yes, I voted no (only because we were not doing things according to order), I don't know how Louie, Tori or Mel voted. The table arrangement was such that one end of the table could not hear the other end. No excuse for what happened.

One only needs to look back about ten or eleven months ago when the council illegally dissolved the land management board and returned all we had going back to the BIA. Simply because we ignored the constitution we're supposed to live by. We, to this day, have not seen the legal opinion regarding this matter. Vince and Tori have continued to ask to see the report. If it were a good report, you would think it would be made available to all the members.

If we can't work together for the betterment of our people, we will just be another "has been" tribe. Our casino is in need of repairs, we need to pay off a capital improvement loan, which will eliminate large monthly interest payments, increase our borrowing power and help us maintain a good credit rating for future ventures. None of this will get done if we can't work together. It takes all nine votes to make any financial decisions to drawdown from our investment portfolio. In other words, if we continue to be at odds with one another, we will get nowhere.

I continually hear that we (the Winnebago Tribe) is in debt. For heaven sake, who isn't? If you're buying a car, sending your child to college, purchasing a home, if you're paying bills, you're in debt. That's not a big problem. It's when you're not a good steward of our resources that the problem sets in. We have WinnaVegas and HCI - both have taken a hit this year and need some relief from their obligations to the tribal operations. In the meantime, we have a healthy investment portfolio we can lean on. Makes no sense to strong arm our cash cows when we have other resources to turn to! I know one thing, if the council members were paid by the hour instead of salary, the tribe would save over 1/2 million dollars. I would go one step further and say the officers receive wages and the rest (5) receive stipends saving even more. Managing our own farming operations is another huge option, organic farming is another and the list goes on.

I close by saying, "bad dealings make for bad feelings and even worse healing" especially when good people do nothing.

The road between Winnebago and Macy will close on November 12th for repairs to the road. This past Spring a giant piece of the highway shoulder on the Rez Line fell into a nearby creek bed leaving the highway a one lane road. NDOT hasn't said how long the repairs will take, but has said it will take some time to repair. So if you're planning a trip south over the next months plan on driving around the road closure.

Winnebago story deserves to be told, celebrated

By Jim Rixner

As I thought about a subject for this column, I came to the conclusion I wanted to share a "good news" story that needs to be told. That story is the truly remarkable success of the Winnebago Tribe of Nebraska and the tremendous economic and social impact the tribe has on the Siouxland region and continues to have as we move toward the end of 2018.

I am prompted to write about this as a result of my recent selection to the board of directors of the Winnebago Comprehensive Healthcare System, which includes the Twelve Clan Unity hospital. The Twelve Clan Unity hospital is now owned and operated by the Winnebago Tribe since July 1 of this year. Multiple positive changes already have occurred at the hospital as the planned-for full federal recertification of the hospital (lost under Indian Health Service management) moves forward. Highly qualified staff members already have been hired and health care for the Winnebago people and other Native American people is improving on a daily basis.

However, that is just one of many developments that have been occurring in Winnebago over the recent years that have created a dynamic powerhouse of economic development in Siouxland. In order to fully appreciate the nature and extent of this significant contribution to our area, I wish to provide three categories that are the most impressive.

-- First, employment: the current number of people employed as a result of the Winnebago Tribe's vision and energy can best be understood when broken down among the tribe's four principal employers in the tri-state area. These are the Winnebago Tribe, the WinnaVegas Casino, Little Priest College and Ho-Chunk Inc. The Winnebago Tribe employs 526 people in programs ranging from the Winnebago Comprehensive Healthcare System to the Human Service Department to Educare for preschoolers, along with many more programs. These jobs are located primarily on the Winnebago Reservation. Second, there is the WinnaVegas casino at Sloan which employs 375 people. Third, there is the Little Priest Tribal College in Winnebago that employs 50 people. And finally, there is Ho-Chunk Inc. that employs 250 individuals in the tri-state region including HCl Construction, Blue Earth marketing, and the Ho-Chunk headquarters office at Winnebago. The total employment number is approximately 1,201, easily making the Winnebago Tribe one of the top eight employers in our area.

-- Second, there are investments made by the tribe. Ho-Chunk Inc. alone has invested millions in the development of housing and commercial property in Winnebago, which includes the Ho-Chunk Village and wonderful, modern housing for the people of Winnebago. The Winnebago Tribe also has put millions into the expansion of WinnaVegas Casino. And just recently, the tribe has obtained a million-dollar grant to build a new Halfway House in Winnebago. Additionally, Ho-Chunk Inc. has invested millions in Sioux City and South Sioux City. These investments include Ho-Chunk Center, Virginia Square and Flatwater Crossing.

--- And finally, consider the financial impact of these employment figures and investments in Siouxland. People working translates into the buying of goods and services that provides a huge contribution to our local businesses. Furthermore, think about all the supplies and services that are purchased for all of these business entities. Everything from office supplies to heavy equipment and gas for vehicles are necessary for business to function. I certainly am not an expert in economic development, but it is abundantly clear that every dollar invested in this region by Winnebago tribal entities is multiplied in more jobs and more opportunities for everyone in the tri-state area.

People working, families thriving and communities being developed with infrastructure that is both residential and commercial - the Winnebago Tribe is truly one of the economic engines that power Siouxland. The bold and creative leaders of the Winnebago Tribe have laid the foundation of this success over many generations. In the words of Reuben Snake Jr., one of those great leaders: "Working together nothing can prevent us from achieving our dreams and visions to once again be self-sufficient and economically self-reliant."

How ironic that a people forced out of their communities in the 19th century and compelled to be moved across Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota has arrived at this level of social and economic development that is admired and celebrated across the United States. I think you will agree that this is a story of "good news" that needs to be told, remembered and honored by all of us.

God bless the Winnebago people.

Jim Rixner is the retired executive director of the Siouxland Mental Health Center, is the current board chairman of the Winnebago Comprehensive Healthcare System and is a former member of the City Council. He and his wife, Bernadette, are the parents of three adult sons and the grandparents of seven.

Student of the Month

Congratulations!

Aaliyah Clay

September Student of the Month

Hi my name is Aaliyah Clay, I am from a small town called Wichita Falls, TX but graduated high school in Arlington TX. I am the oldest out of five children. I have two younger sisters and brothers back home. I play college basketball and have been playing basketball since third grade. When I was in junior high I also played football, volleyball, basketball, and ran track. Sports have played a big role in my life and I thank god for giving me the gift to do what I love the most and that is furthering my ability to play basketball at the next level. I also want to thank my head coach at Little Priest Tribal College for recruiting me and bringing me out to Nebraska, if it wasn't for him I wouldn't be experiencing the culture and differences I am experiencing now. I have learned so much at LPTC that I will forever cherish and teach others throughout my life, not only about my college experience so far but about the culture and life of the Winnebago people. Last but not least I want to thank my instructors and the faculty for nominating me to be student of the month. I am truly thankful and will continue to push hard in class and on the court! Thank you all so much!
