A shared goal of fostering regular communication across Tribal entities took a step forward on Tuesday, November 27th

The Winnebago Tribal Council met with leadership from WinnaVegas, Ho-Chunk, Inc. and the Winnebago Comprehensive Healthcare System. This was the first such meeting and helps establish an ongoing opportunity to share information among the Tribe's major organizations and the council. Participants hope this communication will lead to increased efficiency and collaboration throughout the Tribe to better serve members' needs. Topics discussed during this first meeting included status of the Tribe's assumption of the former IHS Hospital, now 12 Clans Unity Hospital, and the timeline for certification by the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services. Ho-Chunk, Inc. updated the council on the legal disputes related its tobacco manufacturing and distribution businesses. WinnaVegas leadership provided information on efforts to protect market share and raise revenue in an increasingly competitive gaming market. Discussion items among the whole group included the Tribe's budget challenges, strategies to increase revenue and identifying cost savings. There was an agreement to continue the conversation and working toward those shared goals.

Building a Healthy Community: An update from the Winnebago Comprehensive Healthcare System

The Winnebago Comprehensive Healthcare System (WCHS) has been in operation for a little over four months. Currently, the two major components of WCHS are the Twelve Clans Unity Hospital and the Winnebago Health Department. The hospital services primarily focus on clinical and emergent patient care, while the health department focuses on public health, preventative and community based health needs.

Positions throughout the organization are being filled on an ongoing basis and training and planning for the eventual Centers for Medicaid & Medicare (CMS) certification of the hospital is underway with more to come.

Since day one, the leadership team has been busy assessing operations, improving processes and working to establish services that meet the health care needs of our patients and community. For example, an Express Care Clinic has been established with a goal of offering timely and efficient care that is patient driven. Another significant undertaking is the establishment of inpatient care which will become operational by January, certainly one of the top priorities sought by the Tribe. Furthermore, in order to provide our patients with local high quality specialty care and reduce the burden of travel to outside providers, a contract has been established with Avera Health to begin telehealth specialty clinic services at Twelve Clans Unity Hospital. Specialty clinics will include Endocrinology, Gastroenterology, Wound Care, Rheumatology and Behavioral Health.

There is still much work to be done but our goal is to work with the community in the development of a system that strives to enhance wellness for everyone from our children to our elders. Competent, compassionate care and responsiveness to patient and community concerns will be our guiding principles. It is a new day for comprehensive healthcare for the Winnebago people.

Indianz.com... Native women support longtime Democratic leader ahead of key vote

By Acee Agogy

The 116th Congress has yet to begin but the two Native women who won their historic campaigns are casting a key vote this week.

Democrats who will be serving in the U.S. House are meeting behind closed doors on Wednesday to choose their leaders. And both Deb Haaland and Sharice Davids have made it clear that they plan to vote for Nancy Pelosi as Speaker, the highest-ranking post in the chamber.

Haaland, who hails from the Pueblo of Laguna, has repeatedly spoken in support of Pelosi since winning election in New Mexico's 1st Congressional District.

"She's the only person I believe that we need in this tumultuous time with the president we have, to stay on track to make sure that we are fulfilling promises to the American people," Haaland said on the ABC News program "This Week" on November 18.

Davids, who will be representing the 3rd Congressional District in Kansas, went public with her support of Pelosi on Saturday.

"I also have said time and again that whoever would get my vote for speaker had to have a plan for fixing the way business is done (or more recently, not done) in Washington," the Ho-Chunk Nation citizen said in a statement in which she highlighted the youthful and diverse nature of the incoming class of Democratic lawmakers.

Despite securing the support of the first Native women to win election to the House, Pelosi has not found her path to leadership to be an easy one. Though she made history as the first woman to serve as Speaker more than a decade ago, she is facing opposition and criticism from members of her own party in her bid to reclaim the post.

But, as Davids pointed out, no one has officially announced a challenge to Pelosi, who represents California's 12th Congressional District. One lawmaker who was considering a run for Speaker, Rep. Marcia Fudge of Ohio, has voiced concerns about the party's commitment to diversity and protecting the voting rights of Native Americans and other minorities.

Fudge, however, endorsed Pelosi last week in light of concessions being made on those issues.

"I am now confident that we will move forward together and that the 116th Congress will be a Congress of which we can all be proud," she said in a statement.

Thoughts from the Kids...

By Lance Morgan

We spend a lot of time on public relations locally. Some of it has been effective, but a lot has just been treated as noise. I learned a long time ago that some people specialize in being crabby and we sure aren't going to change their mind with corporate P.R. However, I do think we can have a much bigger impact by educating our young people about what we do and the opportunity they have with us.

The last two years we have taken the summer youth workers on a tour of Ho-Chunk, Inc.'s local businesses. This year we also added another tour for some of the kids in the Academy at the high school.

We try and jam in as much education as possible while also bouncing around our various businesses in town and in Sioux City. What has surprised me is how little the young people actually knew about what we do and the fact that we have offices all over the country and internationally. I suppose it figures that they wouldn't know a ton of specifics, but many had never been in most of our facilities including the Ho-Chunk Centre.

We do surveys at the end and most of the student comments were very positive and the survey results were overwhelming positive. However, despite the positive responses only 40 percent of the students agreed or strongly agreed they could see themselves working at Ho-Chunk, Inc.

These are some of our best students and we just opened their eyes about everything we do and how bad we will need them in the future and over half were not sure they could see themselves working for us. Not wanting to work somewhere isn't a crime, but their responses didn't make sense considering all the other positive comments made in the survey.

If I had to guess I think it is a confidence issue. Our young people often don't have a lot of exposure to internal business operations and it is all kind of a mystery to them when they visit—think Charlie visiting the Chocolate Factory. Most don't have parents that work in management positions or their parents are not entrepreneurs, so business isn't a talked about at the dinner table.

I have seen this before with our interns. They are so tentative in the beginning, but we take them to normal business meetings, corporate board meetings and expose them to a ton of business situations. After a month or two they become much more comfortable and start to open up verbally. By year two or three of the internships you can see their confidence start to emerge and they start becoming leaders for the new interns.

We are running a marathon in our community. Changing people's idea of what is possible will take some time. So, we will keep hiring interns. We will keep giving tours to summer youth workers and we will try to expose as many of our young people as possible to what we do at Ho-Chunk, Inc. We will still do our normal corporate P.R., but in our community, you must show people one at a time and since we are small we are going to try to plant a seed in the minds of all our young people.

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

Pastor Ricky Jacob

"Not Today"

The other day I saw a sweat shirt with these two words on it: Not Today.

I am sure that these two words, taken together, can be understood in so many ways. Just what are those ways? They might be referring to one's response to God. 'I am not walking in your ways today. I am not stopping what I know in my heart is wrong today!' Or, 'I am not getting out of bed or being forced or shamed into going to church today.' Or 'I have no time for reading the Bible, or praying today.' 'Not today Lord, maybe tomorrow or next Sunday, but not today!'

Each and every Sunday is like Thanksgiving Day where God invites you to gather together as a dear child of God and feast on His Word and Sacraments. And yet many will say: 'I don't feel good, I am tired, I stayed up too late last night.' The list of so-called excuses goes on and on and on, till it is too late. Ask the five foolish virgins what happened to them in Jesus' parable regarding the ten virgins, for them it was sorry too late! [see Matthew 25:1-13] For those who choose to allow their faith in Jesus to grow cold they will hear these words: "I never knew you."

Or you can take these two words - Not Today - as led by the Spirit of God. The reasons you are encouraged to attend church each and every week is two-fold. First it is to build your spiritual life up. And second, it is to build one another up. God's gracious invitation to His House each week is to strengthen you spiritually.

Paul wrote these words as he attempted to prepare believers in Christ of His return on the Last Day: 'Now, brothers, about times and dates we do not need to write to you, for you know very well that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night. While people are saying, "Peace and safety," destruction will come on them suddenly, as labor pains on a pregnant woman, and they will not escape.

But you, brothers, are not in darkness so that this day should surprise you like a thief. You are all sons of the light and sons of the day. We do not belong to the night or to the darkness. So then, let us not be like others, who are asleep, but let us be alert and sober (well balanced). For those who sleep, sleep at night, and those who get drunk, get drunk at night. But since we belong to the day, let us be sober (well balanced), putting on faith and love as a breastplate, and the hope of salvation as a helmet. For God did not destine us to suffer wrath but to receive salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ. He died for us so that, whether we are awake or asleep, we may live together with him. Therefore encourage one another and build each other up, just as in fact you are doing' [1st Thessalonians 5:1-11 NIV].

In order to be sober, or well balanced, one needs to be led by the Spirit of God. Without God's Spirit's blessing and strength and guidance, we all too often would fall off the wagon and be lost.

With God's Spirit we can resist temptation and say: 'NOT Today Satan! I am not going to get drunk today. I am not going to dishonor Creator God with my words, or my thoughts, or my actions.'

Each and every day you can remember that God has placed His Name upon you, when you were baptized in the Name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. Your sins were washed away and God's Spirit took up residence in your heart. Each and every day you can live destined to receive salvation through faith in Jesus your Lord and Savior!

Council Speaks...

Hello Tribal Members,

I wanted to first of all thank those of you who believed in me enough to take a seat here as a tribal council member.

I can say that upon coming into this position I thought it would be a new adventure and exciting to simply accomplish what our constitution states. To this day it has not been so. In my honest opinion all I have witnessed is micro managing at its best.

It is so true what I have been told that some may make it hard to sit at this table. I have not even been here for two months but as of lately Chairman White, Vice Chairman St Cyr and Treasure Warner have made it almost impossible for me to continue to work as an independent tribal contractor to do any work here. To earn money honestly to provide for my family at no cost to my people which I feel there is simply nothing wrong with this.

I have found that politics is very ugly and I am not a Politician, I am just like every other hard-working tribal member. It has crossed my mind that maybe this is not for me, but I took an oath and will continue to do the best I can. My goal was to simply try and bring some new things to our town by hopefully working with our economic arm to make this happen, such as a bowling alley, food franchise, major truck stop and any other type of business that would increase revenue back to us for our future generation. Our dividends and casino profits just can't support our needs any more. We need to invest!

With that being said I will now be seeking work outside our community that will require me to travel and have much longer days and on occasion may make it hard for me attend certain meetings. What I have seen so far in the meetings isn't anything that involves progress for my people or the future so far. I will do the best I can to get to the meetings, I just feel that I am not here to micro manage and run day to day operations. This is why we have program directors and department heads.

I love my people and only want the best for us but I need to support my family as well, and its my choice to do this at no cost to you, its an honor to serve you, my people.

I don't want to pay these council men to manage me or my business and my livelihood nor should you the people. Who and how are these salaries determined, maybe you the people need to decide after all its your tribal dollars.

Our constitution at one point, stated that to pay the council it had to be a majority vote by the people, and today it states that the council can be paid but it must be reasonable and justifiable and I believe that our tribal dollars that pay these top seats well over two hundred thousand plus dollars is not reasonable and justifiable. At least from what I've seen so far.

I honestly feel the remaining council have the passion and vision as I do and have faith in them. Maybe I'm right maybe I'm wrong, but I can clearly see who is only worried about their pockets before my people's needs.

Respectfully,
Hu Jop
Melton J Frenchman

Our Own Dr. Rex' Life of Service

We all know he can sponsor and organize a fun-filled Easter Celebration, a lot of us also appreciate his "Angel Tree" at Christmas time, but over this past summer our own Dr. Rex Monif was deployed to Honduras to serve our troops and then some, "here are some shots to share from my latest Army Deployment, says Dr. Monif.

"I was on Active Duty in Honduras from June until October 15th at JTF-B Soto Cano. During the deployment (other than treating our deployed soldier, marines, and airmen), I did many missions to treat the children at the local schools and orphanages."

"I also enjoyed lecturing at the Ministry of Health and the Dental School. I even received a letter of appreciation for my efforts by the Honduran President".

Dr Rex would like us all to know "how grateful I am to have the support of the Winnebago Tribe of Nebraska and my patients who have always supported their Warrior citizens".

Letter to the Editor...

Dear Mr. Editor;

At last we heard from two council members, but they really didn't say much. Maybe the Letters to the Editor have been beneficial. That is all they were meant to be from the first. To wake up the tribal members. But...Just read on.

Is micromanaging and mismanagement of tribe assets a dereliction of duty? Our take on micromanaging is keeping a heavy hand on the departments of an entity and telling a director how to or what to do on or with certain things. Any micromanaging is. Bottom line is you don't have confidence in your upper managers or directors, then why have them or pay them high salaries. If things fail, you have no one to blame but yourselves.

With cash cows' earnings down what is the plan. Bleed the programs dry? That it might be needed in the operations and delivery of program services to tribal members. It seems that members are being left out of the picture. Are you sure that you know what's going on?

Which leads to another question what exactly are we invested in and for how much. Is our investments in companies? Real Estate? Or 401k's? Please answer, "all of them". And how much are we worth? These are things the tribal Treasure should be telling us at least once yearly if not quarterly. Why do we have to pull teeth or play 20 questions to find out anything?

We have educated tribal members. Now more than ever we need their educations. We need their education here, because our work force knows more than the council does. Do we need to have an education qualification added to election criteria?

We thank the Winnews for its editorial policy making it possible to bring forth what is being perpetrated in OUR name. IF some want to turn a blind eye or deaf ear, I pray that their children and grandchildren can live with every misstep of the council.

We leave wit this: We pray that you are loved by some, appreciated by many and are content with where you have been and where you are going. That you have piece of mind with what you know and didn't do anything about.

Indianz.com...

Before Davids came forward, 16 Democrats -- including five newcomers -- said they would not support Pelosi for Speaker. Their November 19 letter called for "new leadership" in the House.

"There are plenty of strong Democratic options. I will vote for one of them," Ben McAdams, whose close race in Utah's 4th Congressional District was finally called in his favor later in the week, wrote in a post on Twitter. Democrats have won at least 233 seats in the 435-member House. At the party's meeting in Washington, D.C., on Wednesday, Pelosi only needs a majority of those members to endorse her campaign for Speaker.

The official vote for Speaker will come after the 116th Congress convenes on January 3, 2019. Pelosi needs at least 218 votes to claim the title, so she can only afford to lose 16 members of her party, assuming all Republicans vote against her.

As Pelosi continues to rally support ahead of Wednesday's party meeting, her closest allies remain confident.

"She will be our next Speaker of the House," Rep. Ben Luján of New Mexico, who successfully oversaw the Democratic takeover of the chamber, asserted in a post on Twitter after the 16 Democrats released their letter last week. One of the signers, incidentally, has since reversed course and has endorsed Pelosi.

Luján, who grew up on the homelands of Nambé Pueblo in northern New Mexico, represents several tribes in the state's 3rd Congressional District. He is running for Assistant Democratic Leader and is part of the "new generation of outstanding candidates" whom Davids talked about in her statement on Saturday.

"The new generation of leaders is growing and we won't be ignored," Davids said.

Twitter Ads info and privacy

Up until issuing the statement, Davids had largely been silent on Pelosi, a frequent target of the GOP, in a district that was held by a Republican for nearly a decade. During the campaign, she pitched herself as a candidate who was willing to stand up to the Trump administration but also hold the Democratic leadership accountable.

Haaland was much more at ease with Pelosi in a district that has sent a Democrat to Capitol Hill in every election since 2009. The two appeared at a campaign event in August to call for greater protections for Native women by updating the Violence Against Women Act and by passing other initiatives, such as Savanna's Act to address the crisis of missing and murdered Native women and girls.

"We must increase funding for tribal justice systems and track the data because Native women deserve to be counted and we deserve to live," Haaland said at the August 7 event in Albuquerque, which is home to a large urban Native population.

Little Priest Tribal College Basketball Season Underway

By Garan Coons, Winnebago Tribal Communications Officer

Winnebago, NE – On Tuesday, November 13 both the men and women LPTC basketball teams held their first home games of the season at the Winnebago School Gym. A good size crowd was in attendance as the fans were treated to a pair of wins by the men and women LPTC Warriors.

Lady Warriors Observations - The women's team features a lot of players from the southwest. They still have some growing pains but overall they have a great team. They average 77 points per game and have some shooters.

Talia Paytiamo and Samantha Eddy are a good duo to watch. I'm surprised how well Eddy attacks the hoop each time she gets the ball. Paytiamo is in her second year at LPTC and although she played pretty well last year, she's going to be a force in this year's team. Another great addition to the team is Kylie McKinley, from Farmington New Mexico. She averages double figures; she is also a great defender.

The ladies have the capacity and the stamina to full court press which is attributed to the coaching staff. Last year's team especially in the second half the ladies would run out of steam. However, this year's team has great bench depth and the conditioning of the player's is better this year.

The tough test will come when the ladies start conference play. The lady warriors currently sit at 5 wins with 3 losses. Come to a game and watch these ladies on the court. I'm sure some of them will be going to bigger division I schools.

Men Warriors Observations – With only two players returning from last year, the men warriors basketball team is all new, coaches included. I have to say they have the ability to put on a good show, seeing a 5'10 basketball player dunk over guys that are 6'5 is always a good show!

However, they are still figuring out their style of play. You could tell that some of them want to play for themselves, maybe it's so they can get a better offer from a division I school, or maybe it's that they still have the high school basketball mentality. I remember attending the first team meeting and LPTC athletic director, Keith Hanks said "All of you were stars in high school, this is Juco (Junior College) basketball now, it's way different. You are going to have to earn your spot for playing time". I learned in the last couple of years that the Juco circuit is a way for players to get better looks from bigger schools if they excel in a Juco program. I think this is the main reason some of the LPTC warriors try to score anytime they get the ball without running through their offence first. The defense is lacking, especially fundamental boxing out for rebounds. The warriors get better looks when they drive to the hoop as opposed to coming down to the three-point line and throwing it up.

The warrior team does have a lot of talent and a lot of depth on the bench. Connor Hawk is a 6'6 ft , 230 pound freshman from Parker Colorado. You need to see him work inside the paint, he is really aggressive with the ball. The point guard is Jayden Sheridan from Walthill. He is an Omaha Tribal member and it shows that he was taught fundamental basketball. I think once he gets more experience and better vision of the court he could really run a good tight offence. LPTC also has talent from Miami, Florida and Omaha, Nebraska. DJ fields from Omaha North is a big addition to the team. He is a solid player that can work inside the paint. The two Miami players are high flying with a quick trigger. Keep your eye on these two as they make their mark on the LPTC warriors basketball team.

The new head coach Michael Hadley certainly has his work cut out for him and his team. From my observations of a few practices and watching the first few home games, the warriors are going to develop into a solid team with a winning tradition. I heard a rumor that he wasn't starting his best players because they were not doing good in classes. If that's true, I tip my hat to coach Hadley because the studies first mentally is a great coaching ideology for this program.

I would recommend you follow both teams this year. Things are going to get interesting because they are now eligible to play for the ICCAC Region 11 tournament. The warriors are just now coming off the probation period mandated for any new college athletic program to join the ICCAC Region 11. Look out Winnebago, The LPTC Warriors are now "All In"!

New Sign at Winnebago Senior Citizens Center

Anna Adams

After waiting 3 years the Senior Center finally got their new outdoor sign. Early on Saturday, Sept 29, 2018 the new Winnebago Senior Citizen Center sign was installed at the center. It was a sprinkling and cloudy but rain or shine it got done. Winnebago Artist, Anna Adams spent a week designing and painting the storyboard as an original piece of artwork for the Seniors. When asked where she came up with the idea. Here's what she said: "I have been hearing alot of exciting news about Tribal Sovereignty, Food Security, Herbal plants, natural animal habitats, pollinators and I wanted to incorporate that into a storyboard for the seniors to use to explain to the kids and visitors. The theme I chose was the "Mahic" common milkweed and its life cycle. It is accompanied by the purple cone flower (echineacea) and the Brown Eyed Susan. Other popular images are the Monarch Butterfly, its caterpillar and the honey bee. Each one has its own story and lends itself to a short conversation about life. Winnebago Indians are very supportive of growing, harvesting and eating the milkweed plant when its in season. Look for the milkweed plume or the fluff that carries the milkweed seed and the seed pods in the storyboard. The fluff is used for insulation and pillow stuffing because it has hypoallergenic qualities and coated with wax. I enlarged the blooms of the milkweed so you can see the interesting shapes of the individual flowers. Doesn't it look like some of the images you see in the ribbonwork dresses from long time ago? The Monarch Butterfly eats milkweed leaves on its migration route south to Mexico each year. The milkweed plant provides food for the caterpillars and supports the continuation of life and the journey for Monarchs next generation. Honey bees use nectar from all plants and trees in bloom each year to provide us with honey and to pollinate plants that produce flowers, fruit and nuts. I think the word "syboiosis" best describes the the fact that "things live together". The herbal plants like purple cone flower (echineacea) and brown eyed susan are good examples of natural plants that were used by our ancestors as remedies for cold and flu symptoms. My artistic rendition of the old woodlands style of beadwork and applique that you can see in museum collections on breach cloths, and bandeliers from the early 1900s is the stylistic approach i took in painting to interconnect several different kinds of plants with stems, vines and branches. Hope you like it. I'd like to thanks all those who interjected ideas and suggestions for me. I tried to include it all. A special thanks to two old veterans Velma and Rey Alaniz who supervised and continually supported this project from beginning to the final installation. Also Victoria Goodin, Hannah, Esther, and Elijah Fernandez some teenagers who spent 4 hours helping me as my paint crew. God bless you and may you live long and prosper."
