Winnebago Seniors Enjoy Last Home Game

Indians Honor AD Adam James and Family with Indians Quilt

The Winnebago Indians and Head Coach Jeff Berridge recently honored their Athletic Director, Adam James for his dedication to the Winnebago Sports Programs serving as a school principal, football coach, wrestling assistant coach, ad and all around good little Indian Teddy Bear. Players and Coaches also wanted to recognize Mr. James's family as they have sacrificed most of their family time while Adam has been fulfilling his duties in all his capacities. The James family was honored with a beautiful Star Quilt made by Denise Lerma. Thanks Mr. James and keep up all the good work.

WINNEBAGO REPRESENTED ON NEW STATEWIDE EARLY CHILDHOOD WORKFORCE COMMISSION

Omaha, Neb. A new statewide commission has been formed to tackle one of the most complex and pressing challenges facing Nebraska today—expanding and strengthening the state's early childhood workforce to meet children's needs throughout the first eight years of life.

The Nebraska Early Childhood Workforce Commission includes 39 public- and private-sector leaders brought together by the Buffett Early Childhood Institute at the University of Nebraska, including Darla LaPointe, a member of the Tribal Council of the Winnebago Tribe of Nebraska. The Winnebago Tribe operates the first Educare to serve Native American children and families.

LaPointe and commission members are charged with developing a statewide plan to ensure a skilled, informed, and diverse workforce is available to all children. The group held its first official working session on Wednesday, Feb. 15, in Lincoln. The meeting marks the beginning of a three-year collaboration believed to be among the most comprehensive efforts in the nation to focus on those who care for, nurture, and educate young children. Nearly 80 percent of children from birth through age 5 in Nebraska are enrolled in some form of paid child care.

"Early childhood professionals play an enormously important role in helping children achieve their potential and grow into healthy, confident, productive adults," said Samuel J. Meisels, the Buffett Institute's founding executive director. "There are not nearly enough

Indianz.com... Senate Committee on Indian Affairs sets hearing on Trump administration 'priorities'

Monday, February 20, 2017

National Congress of American Indians President Brian Cladoosby and other tribal leaders at the organization's winter session in Washington, D.C., on February 15, 2017. Photo by Indianz.Com / Available for use under a Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0 International License

The Senate Committee on Indian Affairs is gearing up for its next hearing of the 115th Congress.

Lawmakers will meet March 15 to learn about the new Trump administration's "priorities" for Indian Country. A witness list hasn't been posted online but similar hearings in the past have featured federal officials and tribal leaders, although not always at the same time.

So far, Republican President Donald Trump hasn't said anything about Indian issues but he has failed to include tribes in his directives on infrastructure, a wall along the U.S.-Mexico border, immigration and public safety. His Cabinet includes officials who have advocated anti-Indian positions on tribal courts, sovereign immunity and Indian health.

As a result, tribal leaders and advocates remain extremely cautious about the new political climate in Washington. Many remain focused on cultivating bipartisan relationships with members of Congress in light of the uncertainty.

"People ask me if we're nervous," Ernie Stevens, the longtime chairman of the National Indian Gaming Association, said as the National Congress of American Indians met in Washington, D.C., last week for its annual winter session.

Stevens, who is a citizen of the Oneida Nation in Wisconsin, tells people he isn't. "We've got Indian people on the front line" ready to stand up to defend tribal interests, he said.

Trump's team is also going without the Cabinet position considered most important for tribes. The Senate isn't due to consider the nomination of Ryan Zinke to be Secretary of the Interior until the end of the month, stretching out the confirmation process to early March, an unusually long delay for the position.

Zinke has won praise from tribal leaders for his pro-sovereignty stances. But without his direction at the Department of the Interior, which includes the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the agency's priorities are not yet clear.

And when it comes to federal funding for the BIA, lawmakers aren't expecting concrete direction from the new administration for quite some time. Sen. Lisa Murkowski (R-Alaska), who chairs the Senate subcommittee in charge of Interior's programs, said it could be May before Trump's team sends a fiscal year 2018 budget to Congress.

"It's Congress that determines what is funded, not the administration," Murkowski, who sits on the Senate Indian Affairs Committee, said at a briefing on Capitol Hill hosted by Native women. "They can propose it, but we dispose it."

In My Opinion

Thoughts on Work... by Lance Morgan

I hear people say they want jobs a lot. The tribe as a whole has done a tremendous job in the last 25 years creating jobs. There are approximately 750 local tribal jobs, including HCI, WinneVegas, the Tribal government, Little Priest College and the Native Star and Iron Horse casino's. This doesn't include the approximately 250 jobs at the hospital, schools, and the BIA. We have right around 1,000 jobs in or close to our community. This doesn't count another 1,000 employees that Ho-Chunk, Inc. has scattered around the county and internationally.

We have more local jobs than working age people in our community. However, I constantly hear we need more jobs. We have plenty of jobs, but why are a large portion of those jobs not filled by tribal members? Some jobs require a particular education that might be in short supply. Some jobs are not that desirable. Some require a trip to WinnaVegas, which I imagine gets old.

I think a couple of things are responsible. First, the tribe implemented drug testing across the board a long time ago. If you smoke pot or do worse things, then you are effectively cut out of the tribal work force. This carries over to Sioux City jobs too. You can get a job without a drug test in Sioux City, but it tends to be low paid, very hard work and difficult to get to.

The side effects of alcohol also create a long-term problem. It often leads to losing a driver's license. A driver's license is often a requirement for a lot of local jobs and even if you have a license, then you often can't do the job because the insurance company will hold past misdeeds against you. This problem limits your job options again to low paid opportunities.

The first two issues create another problem. As a casual observer of human behavior, I believe drinking and smoking pot doesn't result in celibacy. So often our young men and women will have multiple children at an early age out of wedlock. If the parents aren't together, then the court orders child support. However, often the parent doesn't work because they can't get a decent job because they don't have a license or can't pass the initial drug test. After a few years, the amount owed becomes a huge pile and acts as a major disincentive to work.

What can be done about it? I think there are a few obvious things. The Tribe controls their job requirements. The tribe years ago, put in the restrictions for education, drug testing and driver's licenses on their employees. The goal was to push people to be better. I like that goal, but not everyone is going to see the light, especially when they are young. This has resulted in a sort of permanent unemployed or occasionally employed class of tribal member in our community. When you combine the lack of education and huge child support issues, then you have lots of people locked out of the work force.

I resisted drug testing for most jobs at Ho-Chunk, Inc. for a long time. But about 10 years ago, I was essentially ordered by the tribal council to implement it. I was concerned that certain people wouldn't ever be able to get a job. I thought that a job and opportunity would lead to pride and if you have to get up in the morning so you can take care of yourself and your family then it would stop some of the drinking and drugs naturally. This was a risky approach that failed as often as it succeeded, but it did offer a chance. Now I suspect we have between 50 to 100 people in our community who don't have that chance and have no incentive to change much—we all know someone. Also, getting a McJob in Sioux City doesn't have a lot of appeal either and doesn't create enough pride and incentives to change.

I think the tribe should think about this problem and figure out a way to create pathways to success. Maybe give someone a chance to start working even if they didn't have the cleanest test. Test them again after a month or so and check their progress. This will fail a lot, but it also gives people a chance.

I originally was also going to suggest people consider working in Sioux City. It is a near by metro area with a very low unemployment rate and there are lots of companies screaming for workers. But after I think about it, we probably need to handle this issue internally first. Once our people can reach a stage where they can pass the initial drug screening then they will be eligible for better paying jobs in Sioux City and we can help facilitate that transition.

The last thing we need to do is probably set up some kind of gradual payment plan for child support. Our system is all punishment for failure to pay back child support. I suspect some of that can be forgiven or start in a more gradual way in order to get the kids something and create an incentive to work. Over time putting someone into the work force and off drugs or alcohol will benefit both the individual and the children.

Our situation is a mess, but I think it can be solved. We have a clear problem, I am not sure my suggestions are the answer, but we have every incentive to try and fix it.

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

Pastor Ricky Jacob

"God's Sacred Word or not?"

What would there be without the Word of God? If God had not spoken a word there would be nothing, absolutely nothing. You would not be reading these words. You would not have been born. Mauna spoke and there was light! Mauna spoke and water were filled with sea creatures and the birds flew above the earth. Mauna spoke again and the land produced living creatures, livestock, creatures that move along the ground and wild animals. Thus the Sacred Word of God did not begin with Christians, (true Christians or those in name only), it began in the beginning at creation.

Each and every person has the freedom and the right to take or to leave the Word of God. The Sacred Word of God is also called the Bible (book of books). It is comprised of 39 writings prior to the birth of Jesus and 27 writings compiled after His suffering, death, and resurrection.

Where did God's Sacred Word come from? Peter, one of Jesus' disciples wrote: "For no prophecy was ever produced by the will of man, but men spoke from God as they were carried along by the Holy Spirit" [2nd Peter 1:21 ESV].

And the Apostle Paul sent by Jesus Himself wrote: "All Scripture is breathed out by God and profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, that the man of God may be competent, equipped for every good work" [2nd Timothy 3:16-17 ESV]. (Note well: the 'man of God' and not necessarily 'the Christian').

You who are reading these words can accept this as the Word of God or you can declare it as worthless or less than worthless. I, for one, take God at His Word. The only reason I do so is that the Spirit of God has opened my ears to hear these words as God's Words. I did not figure them out by my own reason, nor did I resist God's Spirit in using them to speak to me. Simply by the grace of God and the work of the Holy Spirit they have taken root in my heart and I now stand and say "I believe in Jesus as the Only Begotten Son of Mauna and as my LORD and Savior!" Again this is not my work at all, or in any way. My nature would be to resist these words, do my own thing and go my own way. Mauna allows me to do just that. Where would this get me? This would get me the same result of Adam and Eve who ate the forbidden fruit and ended up banished from the presence of God and even worse if I persist.

If I persist in my stubbornness to take God at His Word then my banishment would be total and everlasting. This outcome would be final and totally dreadful. I would have no one to blame but myself for I have been warned by God!

In the final words of the Good News prophet Isaiah, he wrote about the power of the Word of God:

"For as the rain and the snow come down from heaven and do not return there but water the earth, making it bring forth and sprout, giving seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall my word be that goes out from my mouth; it shall not return to me empty, but it shall accomplish that which I purpose, and shall succeed in the thing for which I sent it.

[Isaiah 55:10-11 ESV]

These words are good news for those who believe because God's Word has the power to do what they say they will do. This is God's work from beginning to end. Note also that this Word of God does not force or impose themselves on those who stubbornly resist. To those who by God's grace not only hear them but also believe them, Isaiah refers to you and the joy and peace you have now and forever:

"For you shall go out in joy and be led forth in peace; the mountains and the hills before you shall break forth into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.

Instead of the thorn shall come up the cypress; instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle; and it shall make a name for the Lord, an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off."

[Isaiah 55:12-13 ESV]

"Latin Clubs for Winnebago Students"

Latin club members Ayden Armell grade 3, Isaiah Armell grade 6 and Austin Armell grade 8.

They are very good students with positive attitudes toward education. What can be added is their learning to memorize some prayers in Latin. Sister Francis said she is very proud of their efforts and progress.

It is good to see their parents. James and Esther are teaching their kids good attitudes toward religion and education. These kids are lucky their parents care.

Winnebago Public School could do the same by starting a Latin Club. A club is not a regular school class. No permanent records are kept or recorded. I wish there was a Latin club at Winnebago Public School it will improve test scores of the students who are serious of the students who are serious about learning with a good attitude.

Any teacher who volunteers to lead a Latin club would learn Latin right along with the students. That would be cool!

It was suggested the students in grades 4 and older all start with Latina Christina I and go start first form Latin, second form Latin, Third form Latin and Fourth Form Latin. Henle Latin is required for fourth form Latin.

Early Childhood Workforce Commission

qualified adults to serve all young children—especially children placed at risk because of poverty, parental unemployment, or other challenges. These are critical issues that Nebraska must face.”

The early childhood workforce includes home-based and center-based child care providers, preschool and PreK teachers, early elementary teachers, and other professionals who teach and care for children from birth through third grade. Among the most urgent issues that the commission will address are the following:

- Shortage. The Nebraska Department of Education’s Teacher Vacancy Survey lists both Early Childhood Education and Early Childhood Special Education as “Teacher Shortage Areas.” Additionally, the Nebraska Department of Labor projects that the number of child care worker positions will increase by more than 13 percent during the next 10 years, which outpaces national projections. Estimates are significantly higher when considering the need for highly qualified early childhood professionals across a variety of early care and education settings.

- Preparation. Training requirements for individuals in the early childhood workforce are often inadequate or non-existent, and professional education requirements are uneven. Twenty colleges and universities in Nebraska offer early childhood degree programs but there is little consistency among them regarding curriculum and degree requirements. For example, each program includes at least one practicum experience, but the required supervised classroom hours vary from nine to 150.

- Compensation. Salaries are so low that many in the workforce leave the profession for other jobs, contributing to high turnover and a lack of stability for young children. In 2015, the median wage for child care professionals in Nebraska was $19,620, which is below the poverty line for a family of three. Close to 20 percent of child care center teachers and PreK – Grade 3 teachers reported holding a second job in a survey conducted last year by the Buffett Institute.

These early childhood workforce challenges are found in both urban and rural areas. According to the 2016 Kids Count in Nebraska Report, 11 counties statewide had no licensed child care facilities in 2015, and roughly 75 percent of counties in Nebraska with child care facilities did not have enough available slots to meet the estimated current demand. The recent statewide Buffett Institute/Gallup Survey on Early Care and Education in Nebraska shows that only 15 percent of Nebraskans believe that all children have access to high-quality programs.

“As the state’s only public university, we are committed to serving Nebraska, and what we hear from business and community leaders is that early childhood is an urgent need,” said Marjorie Kostelnik, dean of the College of Education and Human Sciences at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. “Now is the time to bring people together to take action and make a difference for children, families, and early childhood professionals.”

Members of the Nebraska Early Childhood Workforce Commission represent government, higher education, public schools, child care, philanthropy, health care, and the business community.

The commission is co-chaired by Kostelnik and Meisels.

The commission will meet quarterly over a three-year period (2017 – 2019). Members will work with local leaders to develop targeted implementation plans that address the systems that govern early childhood, including higher education, practitioner needs, and state policy.

WHS Basketball

Masthead Scene

The Winnebago Indians Senior Class recently played their last home game on the Indians home court. The Senior Indians were home to Guardian Angel Cedar Catholic from West Point, Nebraska. The Blujays were in the game for the 1st quarter, but what the Blujays didn't know is that, while half way through the 1st quarter when were sweating and huffing & puffing keeping up with the Indians...the Indians were just now getting warmed up, winning in the end, 96-53. GBB!

All kinds of things been going on with the Indians during the ending days of this years basketball season. Clockwise starting with David getting that windmill during warmups, the Indians in their new shorts giving James some skoo, nurse Julie getting them nachos, the Winnebago dance team, Winnebago student section giving it their all, Lala in her Neon gear-sorry no color page room, and Beetle boxing out.
