Indianz.com... Rep. Tom Cole: The 'American dream' is all about free markets

Thursday, May 23, 2019
Freedom is the American Dream
By Rep. Tom Cole (R-Oklahoma)

Ever since our brave forebearers declared America's independence, the United States has been a beacon of liberty, hope and opportunity.

Indeed, America is still regarded the world over as a land where success can be achieved regardless of where you've come from. And that is because our forebearers trusted free people, free speech and free markets – all of which continue to undergird the "American dream."

The American dream never fails to inspire old and young alike, and I believe its promise will continue to motivate future generations to work hard and innovate. Because our country has always valued hard work, we seek to achieve and often succeed because opportunity exists here. But it's important to recognize that free markets are fundamental to American opportunity and prosperity.

How do free markets contribute to the American dream? The answer rests in the philosophy of freedom so foundational to our nation. Free markets allow consumers and producers to freely participate in mutually beneficial transactions, empowering entrepreneurs and innovators to create the future.

While opponents of free markets often criticize corporations for dominating an industry, their proposed solution is typically socialization – which would by definition grant the government an unfettered monopoly in regulation of an industry. The result of such regulation would hold back job creators, including small business owners and would-be entrepreneurs.

Unelected bureaucrats should not pick winners and losers in the market. I trust the American people to do that on their own.

Where there is more government regulation, there is always less opportunity to innovate and allow the market for products and services to follow its natural trend. To illustrate, think back on rental stores like Blockbuster or Hollywood Video. If the government had socialized the movie rental business in the 1990s, Americans would still be driving to the store hoping to borrow the one movie they wanted to watch.

However, thanks to free markets, we get to enjoy the benefits of innovation, which in the case of video entertainment has led to popular rental services like Redbox and video streaming services like Netflix and Hulu. Similar examples could be drawn about cell phones, cars, household appliances and just about every other industry.

You don't have to look far to find proof that free markets have helped Americans. It is no coincidence that the recent economic boom was preceded by the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act and the Trump Administration's massive regulatory rollbacks.

Due to much-needed tax relief and regulatory reform, job creators on Main Street have been able to expand and invest more in their employees. Wages are on the rise, more jobs are available and hiring continues to tick upward. In fact, unemployment is at an astounding 50-year low.

Free markets truly thrive when insulated by healthy institutions that instill virtue and encourage charity, including strong families and tight knit communities. When the end is purely self-interest, free markets cannot succeed. Rather, they are most fruitful when they are the means to a good end—like having enough money to take your family on a vacation, purchasing your spouse a gift "just because," donating money to a cause you believe in or simply lending a hand to help someone in need.

As evidenced right here in America, a free market economy shaped by virtue is indisputably the most productive economic system for fulfilling the promise of the American dream for generations to come.

Thoughts on a Struggling Community...

By Lance Morgan

person. He made me laugh or chuckle 100 times. I wouldn't go so far to say he was a good friend, but I have never had a cross word with him and thought he represented a lot of good things about our community and what we are trying to accomplish.

I then saw some of the facebook posts which were so aggressive. In my mind, I didn't want to believe it was as bad as I heard. I thought the investigation would shed some light on the issue and I really wanted it to be a mistake. But then I heard about what happened and I honestly felt for him and his family. Don't get me wrong, if something did happen to the children then I feel that is a tragedy too, but it is just that I think it is more complicated then picking a side.

Someone I know in Sioux City sent me a message condemning the person even after he took his own life. I only responded by saying it was a tragedy all the way around. The person wanted me to condemn him also, but I really couldn't in my mind. This is complicated. This is layered problem with a lot of wrongs to address. When you live in a place with so much tragedy and abuse who do you blame? The person? The original abusers who put the cycle in motion? The system who ignores us? The government who exploited us? The churches who abused us? I think there is a lot of blame to go around when you have lived in this kind of system for as long as we have.

I think I choose to blame no one. I choose just to be sad. I apologize if writing about this offends someone, but I think that until we can at least have a conversation about the depths of our issues and the root causes that we will continue to struggle. My hope is that things will get better and the type of trauma we face on a regular basis will start to slow down and then end. In the meantime, all we can do is push forward and survive and protect our children and hopefully create a better future.

Contact me at hochunk@aol.com

The legacy we live with as a community is really hard sometimes. The baggage we carry from generations of poverty is hard to escape. The lingering effects of abuse and the cycles it sets in motion are so hard to stop. Every once in awhile we have to face these realities and it is a hard truth.

I was out of town most of the last two weeks. However, I heard about the allegations of abuse and early death of one of our members. I read some of the harsh comments on facebook. I saw the rush to judgment. I felt the concern of parents for their children. I felt terrible when I heard that someone took their own life.

I wasn't sure I should even write about it to be honest, but I think we never really talk about these issues publicly and that keeps us from really healing. I am no expert by any means on abuse or how to handle it. All I know is that I hate child abuse in all forms. They are the youngest and the most vulnerable of our people. They deserve every chance at happiness and a good life free from the conflict that such things embeds into their minds.

I will just share what I heard and thought. My gut reaction when I heard about what was being investigated was disbelief. I knew the person. I liked the

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

Pastor Ricky Jacob

"The Fruit of the Spirit is love"

How would you define the word 'love'? The word 'love' is easily spoken but the living the life loving not only of oneself, difficult in itself at times to do, but others is a daily sacrifice. A Winnebago man recently told me that his father taught him 'that once that he became a father - that his life would be over.' He meant that then the life of his children would take precedence. I am sure the same can be said for a woman who becomes a mother.

Here is how God defined 'love' through Paul's letter to those sanctified in Christ Jesus and called to be holy: 'Love is patient, love is kind. It does not envy, it does not boast, it is not proud. It is not rude, it is not self-seeking, it is not easily angered, it keeps no record of wrongs. Love does not delight in evil but rejoices with the truth. It always protects, always trusts, always hopes, always perseveres. Love never fails' [1st Corinthians 13:4-7a (NIV84)].

When it comes to 'love' there has been only one man who has loved in this way. That man is the Son of God, Jesus the Christ. Jesus loves us to death - his death. God calls us to love in the same way.

Again we turn to the Sacred Word of God: 'Dear friends, let us love one another, for love comes from God. Everyone who loves has been born of God and knows God. Whoever does not love does not know God, because God is love. This is how God showed his love among us:

He sent his one and only Son into the world that we might live through him. This is love: not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son as an atoning sacrifice for our sins.

Dear friends, since God so loved us, we also ought to love one another. No one has ever seen God; but if we love one another, God lives in us and his love is made complete in us.

We know that we live in him and he in us, because he has given us of his Spirit. And we have seen and testify that the Father has sent his Son to be the Savior of the world. If anyone acknowledges that Jesus is the Son of God, God lives in him and he in God. And so we know and rely on the love God has for us.

God is love. Whoever lives in love lives in God, and God in him. In this way, love is made complete among us so that we will have confidence on the day of judgment, because in this world we are like him. There is no fear in love. But perfect love drives out fear, because fear has to do with punishment. The one who fears is not made perfect in love' [1st John 4:7-18 (NIV84)].

Each Sunday morning at 10 we will be taking up one of the fruits of the Spirit. '[T]he fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control.' I am also offering the same study on Wednesday evenings from 5 to 6. Please join us at Jesus Our Savior Lutheran Church, located directly west of the Blackhawk Community Center.

Alexander Mallory seized travel opportunities through scholarships

May 8, 2019

Alexander Mallory

J.D. Candidate, Class of 2019
Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law,
Arizona State University

Alexander Mallory, a J.D. candidate graduating this week from the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law, is grateful for his experience at ASU Law, as well as for the fellowship he has experienced as a student.

Mallory was the recipient of a Diversity Legal Writing program scholarship, a study abroad scholarship from the ASU Study Aboard Office, and a scholarship from the Indian Legal Program, which was generously provided by Kate Rosier of the Indian Legal Program at ASU Law.

Coming to ASU Law he knew he was in the right place, but was surprised that he would be able to spend half of his law school experience elsewhere.

"I went from Maui, HI to San Diego, CA to Milan, Italy and finished in Washington, D.C. Each experience had an indelible impact on my personal and professional development," Mallory said.

These travel opportunities were made possible through the generosity of donors.

"My scholarships enabled me to spend time studying abroad and it would simply not have been possible without the financial support I received," said Mallory. "Thank you for your generosity and for changing the lives of so many students. I, and countless others, would not have had access to a legal education but for donors like you who invest in students like me," he added.

He is most grateful for his time at ASU Law and for his experience with the Indian Legal Program. As a Winnebago (Winnebago Tribe of Nebraska), Mallory is often inspired by the stories of his ancestors.

"Millions of stories stretched across time. Each one of them different. Each one of them the same. I am an evolution of their stories, and each of us contributes to an indispensable part of something greater," Mallory stated. "I'm grateful my Creator gave me ears to listen, hands to serve, and a heart for justice. May I use these gifts and my degree to fight for a more just and human world," he added.

After graduation he plans to move to the Dallas/Fort Worth area to participate in a clerkship through the Department of Justice Honors Program.

Congratulations Alexander!

DEA Omaha Division collects 32,713 pounds of unwanted medication at spring Take Back Day event

OMAHA, Neb. – The Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) collected nearly 469 tons of unwanted medication at the 17th National Prescription Drug Take Back Day event, April 27, with a record-setting 6,398 sites hosted by more than 5,000 law enforcement partners. In Nebraska, 5,661 pounds of potentially dangerous and unwanted drugs were discarded at 47 sites with assistance from 37 local, state, tribal and federal partners. Nebraska saw an increase in its number of Take Back sites and partners as well as a 3,239 pound increase over the last Take Back Day event, October 27, 2018.

Since the first National Prescription Drug Take Back Day in 2010, Nebraska has collected 94,149 pounds of discarded drugs. The DEA Omaha Division, which includes Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota and four counties in Illinois and Wisconsin, collected 32,713 pounds of medication on April 27.

"National Prescription Drug Take Back Day is more than just a day for people to turn in unwanted, unused and expired medication," DEA Omaha Division Diversion Program Manager William Stockmann said. "Take Back Day provides us with a time to remind our communities about the potential for misuse and abuse of prescription medication. It's important for each of us to do our part in making sure that medications are properly safeguarded and eventually discarded, removing the temptation for misuse by family and friends."

Individuals unable to attend the Take Back Day event can locate year-round, secure drop-off locations by visiting <https://apps2.deadiversion.usdoj.gov/pubdispsearch/spring/main?execution=e1s1>. Or, to safely dispose of unwanted medication, remove medicine from its original container, mix it with an undesirable substance, such as used coffee grounds or kitty litter, place the mixture into a sealable bag and then throw the contents into the trash.

For more information on National Prescription Drug Take Back Day, including April 27 results, please visit, takebackday.dea.gov, or contact Omaha Division Public Affairs Specialist Emily Murray at 402-964-7950.

The next National Prescription Drug Take Back Day is set for Saturday, October 26.

HASTINGS MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, HASTINGS, NE.— The Hastings EAA Chapter 544, along with the Hastings Airport Association and the City of Hastings will host an Airport Open House and Fly In Breakfast. The event is open to the public and will offer the public a close up look at the airport, the aircraft flying in, and rides on the 1928 Ford Tri-Motor.

An immaculate 1928 Ford Tri-Motor will be offering an opportunity for passengers to experience flight aboard the world's first mass-produced airliner. The Ford Tri-Motor or the "Tin Goose" was first built by the Ford Motor Company in the late 1920s. This Ford Tri-Motor, owned by the Liberty Aviation Museum in Port Clinton, Ohio, and flown on tour through a lease agreement with EAA, was constructed in 1928 and has an intriguing history, with roles ranging from service as an airliner over the Grand Canyon in the 1930s and later in Honduras, to a showpiece as part of the legendary Harrah's auto and aircraft collection in Nevada.

This Tri-Motor can carry up to 10 passengers at a time, and every seat has a window. Passengers are encouraged to bring a camera to record and share this experience. Tickets purchased in advance are $72 for adults; walk up tickets are $77 and $52 for children 17 years old and under. Saturday breakfast is a free will donation.

Public Notice

Northern Natural Gas provides notice of intent to enter its right of way to conduct maintenance activities of pipeline facilities on the Winnebago reservation. Northern owns and operates an interstate natural gas pipeline system that is regulated by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. As part of ongoing operations, Northern regularly conducts maintenance activities on their pipeline facilities. Maintenance activities on the Winnebago reservation are scheduled to begin on or after July 8, 2019. The ground will be temporarily disturbed during these activities and restored to original condition upon completion of the maintenance activities.

The purpose of this public notice is to inform all Native American landowners of the start of the maintenance project. Northern has notified the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and will remain in contact with them until completion of the project.

The two allotments that will be impacted on the Winnebago reservation are:

- 152L - James Crane
- 153L - David Bear

Should you have questions, comments or concerns regarding the environmental survey, or the pipeline maintenance projects, please contact Sergio Gonzalez at 1-855-331-3343. You may also call Northern's Hotline, which is available 24 hours per day, at 1-888-367-6671.

LITTLE PRIEST TRIBAL COLLEGE

Our Mission: "Be Strong and Educate My Children"

A Cornucopia of Plant Companions

If I must say so myself, I have a varied and abundant host of friends that make my life fuller. In the plant world, "friendly" or companion plants make a garden healthier, brighter and more abundant.

I won't wax poetic, (maybe I will) but if we plant in families or companions, we can prevent the spread of plant born pests, diseases and harmful insects. Following is a short list of companion plants and how they benefit us in our gardening endeavors.

Nasturtium + Cucumbers: Vining cucumbers vertically and planting nasturtium below seems to repel certain harmful insects.

Melons/Squash + Flowering Herbs: Dill, fennel, and parsley attract pollinators, plants need pollinators, voila, you have a ready-made source.

Sweet Alyssum + Swiss Chard: Sweet Alyssum attracts hover flies which eat aphids, combine the two and you've created a symbiotic relationship.

Corn + Pole Beans + Squash: The Three Sisters as they are known among Native Americans are among the most well-known companion plants. The corn provides a "pole" for the beans to climb, the beans convert nitrogen to a form easily used by other plants, and the squash leaves provide shade and mulch to reduce weeds and hold moisture.

There are many more examples of companion plants, but I will stop here by saying: Plant friendly, plant family and plant your companions (plants, that is) to get the most out of your family garden!
