On June 29th, Little Priest Tribal College hosted a two-day Metal Smith Workshop at the Ho-Chunk Village Market. 20 attendees were shown how to make brooches through creating designs, stamping outlines and filing them using hand tools such as hammers. To complete the brooch, a disk sander was used to smooth the project.

LPTC's Public Library has concluded their Summer Reading Program. Story times included exploring genres that may be new to readers: Manga, historical events and new/unheard of accomplished writers. Other arts & crafts activities kept the youth busy.

[Washington D.C.] On Thursday, June 20th, 2024, the US Senate passed the companion bill to HR 1240 virtually ensuring the land illegally taken over 50 years ago by the US Army Corps of Engineers would be returned to the Winnebago people here. "The tribal council has been privileged to carry this work forward and help send this bill to President Biden's desk.", said Tribal Council Chairwoman Victoria Kitcheyan in her statement following the momentous action.

The Winnebago Tribal Council prepared a public announcement regarding the landmark bill's passage. It was shared across tribal social media and through local news outlets. It is included below. An impromptu celebration of the action was also held on this date at the Big Screen area in downtown Winnebago. Local drum groups, dancers and singers came to help celebrate the occasion. A full celebration will be planned and held once the President's signature has been given. "54 years!" exclaimed one tribal member during the day's joyous activity. They went on, "now we have to work to get all the other lands we've lost back too."

The Winnebago Land Transfer Act to be Signed into Law

WINNEBAGO, NE – Today marks a historical day for the Winnebago Tribe of Nebraska as the United States Senate just approved the Winnebago Land Transfer Act, a bill to restore approximately 1,600 acres of land to the Tribe. The bill now goes to the White House where President Biden will soon sign the bill into law.

"This is a truly historic moment for the Winnebago Tribe as lands that were taken from us over 50 years ago will soon be restored to the Tribe," said Winnebago Chairwoman Victoria Kitcheyan. "Our ancestors, including the late Louis LaRose, fought tirelessly to secure and protect our homelands. We are honored to carry on their work and help send this bill to the President in their honor," Chairwoman Kitcheyan continued.

HOCAK CULTURE CAMP HELD

[Winnebago, NE] During the week of June 24th, 2024, HoChunk Renaissance and friends hosted the youth of Winnebago as it held this season's culture camp here. "It was a long week, but it was really good.", said Renaissance Director Lewis "Bleu" St. Cyr. The staff of the department took on the monumental challenge of providing culturally relevant activities every day of the week. Originally scheduled for two weeks prior, the events were set forward to allow the participants the opportunity to gain the full weeks' worth of activity and experience.

After a slow start due to extreme temperatures on Monday, the summer season relaxed a little making the rest of the week's mainly outdoor activity bearable and fun. One of the participants said, "I had a lot of fun. It seemed to go by really fast though." The department had been planning the culture camp for months and despite the heat of Monday, the week couldn't have gone better weather-wise.

With activities planned for each of the five days, participants were treated to experiences seldom had at any other time during the year – especially in groups where kids could join in with their friends. Tribal dances, hoop dancing, Kasu, beading, and even story telling were among the numerous offerings of the camp. The Winnebago Veteran's Park was home to most of the action. The park is gearing up for the annual homecoming celebration later in the year come July when the tribe will host its 158th powwow.

Working in cooperation with the Winnebago Boys & Girls Club, the HoChunk Renaissance program also had many members of the community involved with the schedule. Tribal elders, tribal leaders, and powwow

History

In the mid-1800s, the Winnebago people were forcibly removed by the United States Army from Wisconsin to Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota, and finally in 1865, to the Winnebago Indian Reservation in Nebraska and Iowa. The 1865 treaty promised that land was "set apart for the occupation and future home of the Winnebago Indians, forever...." In 1970, when the late James "Louis" LaRose was serving as the Winnebago Chairman, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers ("Army Corps") improperly and illegally condemned approximately 1,600 acres of the reservation in Iowa and Nebraska for a proposed recreation project, a project that never came to fruition.

The Tribe turned to the court system to defend its lands but initially lost in both the Nebraska and Iowa district courts. The Tribe appealed those decisions with the 8th Circuit court, and eventually, the court found both the Nebraska and Iowa condemnations were illegal. Despite these victories, the court did not have the authority to return the Iowa lands to the Winnebago people due to a technicality.

Congressional Action

After exhausting its remedies in the court system, the Tribe began working with Congress to restore the 1,600 acres taken by the Army Corps. This effort resulted in the development of the Winnebago Land Transfer Act, which was first introduced in September 2017. Since then, the Tribe has made numerous DC advocacy trips to urge Congress to approve the bill. However, for reasons beyond the Tribe's control, previous bills never moved through the legislative process.

The bill that will be signed by President Biden, H.R. 1240, was introduced by Representative Randy Feenstra of Iowa and cosponsored by the entire Nebraska and Iowa Congressional Delegations as well as Representative Sharice Davids — a member of the Winnebago's sister tribe, the Ho-Chunk Nation. After being approved by the House Committee on Natural Resources, the House of Representatives passed the bill by voice vote on February 5, 2024.

Over in the Senate, Senator Deb Fischer (R-NE), along with Senators Pete Ricketts (R-NE), Chuck Grassley (R-IA), and Joni Ernst

(R-IA), introduced an identical bill, S. 3230. The Senate Committee on Indian Affairs held a hearing on the bill, then subsequently approved the House version of the bill by unanimous consent. The full Senate then approved the bill by unanimous consent on June 16, 2024 sending it to the President for his signature.

Next Steps

President Biden will soon sign the bill into law. Subsequently, the Tribe will meet with the Department of the Interior to discuss the logistics of transferring the land, which will be held in trust for the Tribe. Once officially restored to the Tribe, the Winnebago Wildlife and Parks Department will be responsible for managing this land. The Tribe plans to use the land for conservation and is committed to improving the overall management of the land.

The Winnebago Tribal Council is planning to hold a recognition ceremony and a blessing at a site on the restored lands. Details to be announced.

Thank You's

The Winnebago people have waited for more than 50 years to have the lands that were wrongfully seized by the Army Corps restored to the Tribe. The enactment of the Winnebago Land Transfer Act is a testament to the Winnebago peoples' persistence, determination, and commitment to being a good neighbor. "The Tribal Council would like to thank the Winnebago people for entrusting us to fight for this land that is forever ours," said Chairwoman Kitcheyan.

The Tribe will be forever grateful to Representative Randy Feenstra, Senator Deb Fischer, Senator Chuck Grassley, Senator Pete Ricketts, Senator Joni Ernst, Representative Sharice Davids, Representative Mike Flood, Representative Zach Nunn, Representative Adrian Smith, Representative Mariannette Miller-Meeks, Representative Don Bacon, Representative Ashley Hinson, the House Committee on Natural Resources, the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs, and the Department of the Interior for aikiruti, standing arm in arm, with the Winnebago through this momentous effort.

MISSOURI FLOOD WATERS RISE

By Brian Chamberlain

Photos by Brian Chamberlain / Garan Coons

[WinnaVegas Casino / Resort] With torrential rainfalls to the north and to the east of our region in previous days, the waters of the Missouri River once again flowed forward reclaiming the channels it once filled here. "WinnaVegas will close due to flooding over the road leading to the casino.", said Winnebago Tribal Council Vice-Chairman, Isaac Smith. On Tuesday, June 25th, the water levels rose enough to cover the highway causing the business to halt operation for a couple of days.

On the day prior, the Winnebago Tribal Council commissioned drone footage from Communications Officer, Garan Coons. That video was captured and posted to all WTN social media pages showing just how wide reaching the flood waters were at that point. Less than a day later the depths rose even more claiming the highway to the casino once again. "It's pretty deep. But not like 2011." Coons told the WIN.

The morning of June 25th is when the road began to be covered by overflowing river waters. Employees of WinnaVegas were forced to evacuate the property by 9:00 am to avoid being trapped at the casino. Woodbury County (Iowa) officials took action to temporarily block access to the casino just to the east. One county official working that morning told the WIN the waters were flowing heavily across the concrete and travel was not allowed. Winnebago Physical Resources staff from Facilities, Roads, and Grounds crews were shuttled to the casino later that morning. Along with their heavy equipment, dirt work began to safeguard sensitive areas, like diesel pumps, water storage lagoons, and electrical hardware. Working quickly, that crew was able to ensure no water could reach those locations in case river levels rose even higher. That scenario, however, never happened. "I think we're pretty lucky this time." said WTN Civil Engineer, Ron Nohr, who was also on-site during the day's activity. Water never rose high enough to enter or even threaten any of the structures on the property.

Further up the river in nearby McCook Lake, South Dakota, for example, those areas received catastrophic flood damage. The rivers, both Missouri and Big Sioux, overflowed in significant amounts wiping away entire neighborhoods of that small community. The damage will take many months to clear, and some places may even be uninhabitable going forward.

Because the nature of the flooding was not the same as 2011, the waters soon began to fall after closure halted activity at the casino on the 25th. By the late afternoon of June 27th, the road was no longer flooded, the debris from the nearby fields was cleared away, and the casino resumed operations as normal. The General Manager of WinnaVegas, Tom Teesdale, told the WIN, "We're so very grateful for the tremendous support from the tribe and its departments. Their quick work made sure our operations were never in jeopardy."

personalities all pitched in and helped deliver one amazing week. "We had a really good time.", said the nani of one of the participants after they attended the bonfire. That event was held on Wednesday evening at the Big Screen in downtown Winnebago. There, the whole community was welcomed as they gathered to give the entire event a big push. A bonfire, smores, and round dancing were included during a picturesque evening.

The Winnebago Indian News was on hand throughout the week, and we have several photographs to share both here in print and online via our social media. HoChunk Renaissance has also shared some of the pictures they captured during the 5-day camp. For more information on this culture camp please see both of our Facebook pages, Winnebago Indian-News and HoChunk Renaissance.

Great job this week, everyone!

Letter to the Editor

SUICIDE IN INDIAN COUNTRY PART 50

Do suicidal people cover up how they feel inside?

Yes – to themselves and others. Most often they don't know where the raging, desperate feelings they have come from, and do their best to cover up and try to act "normally". On a much smaller scale, we can understand this by recalling times we went to work with the flu, and carried on as usual without commenting on how we felt.

Most people have also had the experience of being in a heated, angry argument with someone – they are red in the face and terribly upset – when the phone rings. They cover up their angry emotions, and answer with a calm and friendly "Hello". Suicidal people cover up their strong emotions too - sometimes up until the moment they kill themselves.

Does it take courage to kill oneself, or is suicide a coward's way out?

Neither. People who are contemplating suicide are not debating large issues of right and wrong, nor are they facing life bravely or "slinking off" to die. The desperate anguish that results in suicide is not "taking the easy way out". Cruel jokes are sometimes made and angry words said about suicides and their loved ones.

There would be an uproar if the same were said and done about any other death. Dying from pneumonia is not cowardly or courageous; neither is suicide. The taboo causes people to look at suicide as a moral issue rather than a health issue.

How many people leave suicide notes and why?

In the days the stigma was heavier, suicide notes were routinely destroyed so the death could be attributed to other causes. At one time, coroners declared a suicide death only if the person left a note.

Only about one-third of the suicides leave notes. Researchers expected to find clues and explanations from suicide notes, but studies over many years have shown that suicide notes are not particularly insightful. One expert thinks if a suicidal person could write a meaningful note, he would not have to kill himself.

Suicide notes fall into four categories. Most are loving communications asking forgiveness and understanding. Some are angry and hateful and directed at particular people. Some mix feelings of love and anger. Still others are sets of instructions about possessions and funerals. In this electronic age, suicides are increasingly leaving tape recorded messages.

Is every suicide an act of anger or revenge?

No. Some people who complete suicide are feeling very angry – often at people near to them. This anger may or may not be justified. Others who kill themselves genuinely believe their families will be better off without them, and perceive their deaths as being a benefit. Still others feel abnormally guilty, ashamed and deserving of punishment.

A small number of people who kill themselves are delusional (out of touch with reality), and may hear voices telling them to do so. Nonetheless, all suicides are seeking escape from unbearable emotional pain. Some people kill others before killing themselves.

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

By: Pastor Ricky Jacob

"Walking in the newness of life"

On this past Thursday, Americans across the country celebrated many freedoms that we share. However, with freedom comes responsibilities. And with responsibilities comes restrictions. Those who have won our freedoms needed to be willing to be disciplined as they prepared to serve their fellow country men and women.

Members of the armed forces, police and wildlife wardens all undergo a vigorous training. Drill sergeants get in the faces of the new recruits. Many new recruits cannot handle this and drop out on the first day. This type of training is preparing the future military and peace officers in what they may very well encounter as they stand up to ensure the freedoms of others. Yes, even the freedom to 'peacefully' yell in their face.

Each and every day, we have the freedom to get on with our lives. The path that one chooses to take over time becomes one's way of life. People fall into habits, some good and some not so good. Such lifestyles places one on a road that leads into one of two directions.

The one walk, or path of life, leads away from God and ultimately to destruction. The other walk or path of life is referred to as walking in the newness of life. This path of life changes one's ways.

The child of God begins his or her walk when he or she is baptized. Creator God places His sacred name on those who are baptized in the name of the Father, and of the Son - Jesus, and of the Holy Spirit.

When one is baptized, one is united with Christ Jesus. Jesus suffered and died so that our slavery to sin was paid for in full. One who is united with Jesus in his death is also promised of being united with Jesus at the time of the resurrection of the dead.

We learn of this truth from the words of Paul, who wrote: 'We were therefore buried with him through baptism into death in order that, just as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, we too may live a new life' [Romans 6:4 NIV].

Now one who believes in Jesus can no longer continue to walk a life of defiance to the ways of God. A child of God is led by the Spirit of God. He or she walks a life honoring God and is a blessing to all he or she encounters.

God's love is unconditional. However, man's response to God's unconditional love can in fact reject the blessings of that very same unconditional love.

The apostle Paul writes to the saints, the believers in Christ, at Rome: 'In the same way, count yourselves dead to sin but alive to God in Christ Jesus. Therefore do not let sin reign in your mortal body so that you obey its evil desires. Do not offer the parts of your body to sin, as instruments of wickedness, but rather offer yourselves to God, as those who have been brought from death to life; and offer the parts of your body to him as instruments of righteousness. For sin shall not be your master, because you are not under law, but under grace' [Romans 6:11-14 NIV]. By the grace of God - one walks in the newness of life.

In Loving Memory...

HAKWE

Question of the Issue:

Tell us about your favorite perfumes & colognes and share an experience about any of them, good or bad.

Garan: The ones that mask the powwow outfits smell. Haha jk ... Axe effect.

What ever happened to Patchouli Oil? When did that get cancelled? Reminds me of powwow celebrations back in the 80s and 90s. I like to try out different colognes but top three are GIO, Sauvage, and Versace Eros.

Brian: Ralph for women and Love Spell make me hungry! ... and ask about Cupcake and Josie spraying Emeraude on everyone. ... hahaha

Tyler: Bath and Body Works' Plum Moscato and Almond Harvest!!!! It's discontinued now though :) it reminds me of 2015-16. Probably have to buy it from a reseller for triple the price. Seems like i use a different perfume every year so VS Love spell reminds me of 2018 and Moschino Bubble gum reminds me of 2022-23. I can smell the memo'ries lol

Kevin: Pierre Cardin is my favorite cologne. One time I got in my car, and I was wearing it all proud. My girls got inside and said, How come it smells like old lady in here?

Christina: Mine is the original Chanel Chance. I discovered it at the old Younkers in the Sioux City mall.

Bethani: My favorite perfume of all time is the Viva La Juicy with Juicy Couture. I remember the very first time I was able to afford to buy it for myself. It just hit different and I have always been obsessed since day one! I'd try new perfumes or take recommendations, but always end up buying another Juicy Couture "just in case."

Allison: One of my all-time favorite body sprays is Sweet Like Candy By Ariana Grande. Bath and Body Works have a few seasonal sprays I like including Champaign Toast and Vanilla Bean Noel. They remind me of Christmas time.

FOOD REVIEW:

Siouxland Wing Stop

By: Tyler Snake

Recently, my son and I tested out the new Wing Stop location on Hamilton Blvd. The new location in Sioux City was packed all throughout the opening month of April. I've heard mixed reviews, so I finally tried it for myself; I got an 8-piece Mild boneless combo, fries and lemonade. Most frown upon boneless but it's my preference haha. My son got the 4-piece BBQ strips. We shared the Cajun Fried Corn. As for my son's opinion, he loves any food. In my honest opinion, the fries are mid, I'd rather have Burger King fries. The Cajun Fried Corn is overrated. BUT the wings were soo good. ((Shamelessly)) I've been back at least 3-4 times since, really outting my ruined diet ha-ha. For those wanting to try it out, beware of the wait time or call ahead to order. The restaurant is always busy, especially during dining hours. For my rating I'd say it is a strong 3.5 it kept me coming back but I'm saving a 5-star rating for the best meal I've ever had or even better wings.

A Heavy Dose of Mental Health

Movie Review: Inside Out 2

Photos: (studio)

The movie theater industry has surely taken a beating since 2020. The pandemic caused the once bustling theaters to become virtual ghost towns at times. Ever since those days the number of movies I've watched at the theater has significantly dwindled. However, there have been a few movies that drove enough appeal to go back into the darkness. This week we're going to review one of them. Our selection is Disney/Pixar's "Inside Out 2".

The first Inside Out debuted in 2015 to tremendous success. The children's flick was centered around lead character, Riley, who was then about 11 years old. Riley was beginning to feel certain emotions that depicted her growing up and those emotions lived as characters in her mind. They are Joy, Sadness, Fear, Anger, and Disgust. The early story of the first movie was light on dramatics for the screen life of Riley, and the players in her mind did their best to keep Riley on track as she grew up.

Step forward now to 2024 and the same group of characters are shown to be in the mind of Riley who has just turned 13. Riley is now about to leave middle school and enter the world of being a teen. With the five main emotions in tow, the alert is sounded as Riley begins her journey into puberty. From there several new characters are introduced. Boredom, Anxiety, Embarrassment, and Envy.

As the story unfolds, Riley faces several mental challenges and lifestyle crossroads that are pretty typical of a young teenager. Joy and the legacy crew find themselves once again searching for ways to preserve the psyche of their girl, while the newly introduced emotions vie for control and presence in Riley's evolving world. Boredom, or Ennui, has some good quips throughout the show. Most of the characters play their part well, but the subject matter does delve quite deep at times, despite the movie being aimed at children of a certain age.

What's different about this sequel is that in the original the story line was clear. And while it was well performed, and the messaging was easy to follow despite the though provoking subject matter, in the sequel this was not as much the case. The weight of the psychological descriptions took a front seat at times, when again, the original did introduce hefty concepts but was still able to wade through them enough to keep the kiddies entertained.

I do like that there is much wit and forethought placed into the movie. It's just that the subjects became quite heavy at times, which I feel detracted from the story. Breaking box office norms, Inside Out 2 is definitely going to be on the top of lists for movies of 2024 – and rightfully so. I just wish the production teams were able to find the magic they captured so well in the original.

I saw the movie with my granddaughters, and they seemed to like it, but had more fun in the lobby to be honest. On our world-famous Haaz-Zaat! scale, Inside Out 2 is zoning in on a solid 3 1/2 Haazs. Excellent CGI of course; everything you'd expect from Pixar.

Winnebago Tribe Broadband Connectivity Project is the Latest Project to Receive Permitting Assistance from the Permitting Council

Permitting Council Press Office (media@permitting.gov)

WASHINGTON (May 31, 2024) – The Permitting Council (Federal Permitting Improvement Steering Council) is pleased to announce the latest project to receive permitting assistance through the FAST-41 program, the Winnebago Tribe Broadband Connectivity Project. This $35 million project aims to bring critically needed broadband infrastructure to over 800 households, 46 businesses and 16 Tribal institutions in Winnebago, Nebraska.

"I'm proud to welcome the Winnebago Tribe Broadband Connectivity Project as our third FAST-41 Tribal broadband project," said Eric Beightel, Permitting Council Executive Director. "The Permitting Council is a critical piece of the Biden-Harris administration's focus on accelerating the deployment of broadband to communities across the country. Each project that receives our permitting assistance benefits from improved transparency and efficiency during the environmental review and permitting process and we look forward to working with the Winnebago Tribe to advance this critical Tribal infrastructure project."

If permitted this project will provide broadband service to the Winnebago Reservation and adjacent communities to connect residents with reliable and affordable high-speed internet. Project sponsors believe that this project could transform everyday life in the local community by providing access to households, schools, businesses, community centers, and medical facilities, improving the quality of life for hundreds who live and work in and around the reservation.

The National Telecommunications and Information Administration's (NTIA) Tribal Broadband Connectivity Program is providing funding for this project, which proposes to install 235 miles of underground fiber, connecting every household and business within the Winnebago Reservation. The Winnebago Tribe's funding was one of 23 grants provided in the latest awards by the NTIA.

About the Permitting Council and FAST-41

Established in 2015 by Title 41 of the Fixing America's Surface Transportation Act (FAST-41) and made permanent in the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act, the Permitting Council is a unique federal agency charged with improving the transparency and predictability of the federal environmental review and authorization process for certain critical infrastructure projects. The Permitting Council is comprised of the Permitting Council Executive Director, who serves as the Council Chair; 13 federal agency Council members (including deputy secretary-level designees of the Secretaries of Agriculture, Army, Commerce, Interior, Energy, Transportation, Defense, Homeland Security, and Housing and Urban Development, the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Chairs of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, Nuclear Regulatory Commission, and the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation); and the Chair of the White House Council on Environmental Quality and the Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

The Permitting Council coordinates federal environmental reviews and authorizations for projects that seek and qualify for FAST-41 coverage. FAST-41 covered projects are entitled to comprehensive permitting timetables and transparent, collaborative management of those timetables on the Federal Permitting Dashboard. FAST-41 covered projects may be in the renewable or conventional energy production, electricity transmission, energy storage, surface transportation, aviation, ports and waterways, water resource, broadband, pipelines, manufacturing, mining, carbon capture, semiconductors, artificial intelligence and machine learning, high-performance computing and advanced computer hardware and software, quantum information science and technology, data storage and data management, and cybersecurity sectors.
