THE WIN
Winnebago Indian News

IN HONOR OF Neola Walker

Our masthead for this issue features the icon representing the Buffalo Clan / Cexji Hikikarac. The Buffalo Clan held many functions within the tribe. Most notably they held the responsibility of acting as town-criers to the Chief, carrying out and reporting decisions and instructions in the Four Directions. They were orators for the people, assisted in law and order, and acted as intermediary between the chief and his people. The Buffalo Clan is one of the eight Earth clans. For the HoChunk people, the land and the buffalo are inter-related, and the land is associated with the Four Directions. Families within the Buffalo Clan include: Snow, Frenchman, Long, and Chamberlain

[Winnebago, NE] On Tuesday, November 12th, 2024, Winnebago was visited by the U.S. Department of the Interior Secretary, Deb Haaland. The trip to Winnebago was kept under wraps to allow the Secretary to come to Winnebago with a minimal staff contingent and was not announced to the general public until that morning. "We are extremely honored and excited to host Secretary Haaland." Winnebago Tribal Council Chairwoman, Victoria Kitcheyan stated.

Secretary Haaland is the first Indigenous person to serve in a Presidential Cabinet position. A member of the Pueblo of Laguna in New Mexico, Haaland was appointed as Interior Secretary by President Joe Biden in 2020 following his sweeping election. Prior to the appointment as head official for the Department of the Interior, Haaland was elected to Congress, representing her district from the great State of New Mexico. At a reception held during her visit she addressed the capacity crowd stating, "I am extremely honored to be here and accept the invitation of the [Winnebago] tribe." The Secretary spent several hours in Winnebago beginning her day as part of the group witnessing the bison release that was previously scheduled in coordination with the Winnebago Wildlife & Parks Department and the Inter-Tribal Buffalo Council. Several new buffalo were introduced to the Tribe's existing bison herd early that morning. "We have witnessed something monumental. It was exciting, breathtaking, and humbling.", one on-looker said as the 13 new head of bison stormed from their gates into the open pasture.

[Winnebago Reservation] This month of November saw the bison herd of the Winnebago Tribe grow with the addition of several new members to the tribe's overall head count. These 13 new bison came to the Tribe from the Niobrara National Wildlife Refuge. A release event was planned and held at the rural pasture area located to the East and North of the town of Winnebago. "Today is a momentous occasion for the people as we continue to open up the homelands back to our four-legged relatives.", said one member of the Inter-Tribal Buffalo Council. That group was on-hand to witness the release of the new members of the herd. Alongside the ITBC, U.S. Department of the Interior Secretary, Deb Haaland, was also onsite for the momentous occasion. Haaland commented, "I'm so honored to be with you as we celebrate the expansion of the Winnebago tribe's bison herd, which for generations has endured, thanks to the dedication of many people throughout the decades." The day's events were jam-packed with activity. The bison release began those events in grand style. Local drum group New Breed sang honor songs as the herd

The Tribal Council hosted a reception for the Secretary and her staff inside the Veteran's building at Veteran's Memorial Park. Winnebago's Dual Language Class also attended the day's activities, offering prayers and well wishes to the new bison and the visiting dignitaries. The Secretary was joined by members of her staff and Assistant Secretary Bryan Newland. As Haaland addressed the crowd she made mention of the struggles that tribal people have overcome and spoke of our perseverance in the face of adversity. "Our efforts matter.", she stated while remarking on the work done by tribal people to further the interests of our nations.

Secretary Haaland is the first Cabinet member to visit the Winnebago Reservation since the pandemic. Her presence indicates the dedication the Biden Administration has toward Indian people, not just with our inclusion in policy making, but also through self-determination. Winnebago tribal member, Ann Marie (O'Gorman) Bledsoe-Downes, who is Deputy Solicitor for the Department of the Interior's Indian Affairs Bureau was also in attendance. She [Bledsoe-Downes] has served with the U.S. government for many years, most currently under President Biden, but also served under President Obama.

The Winnebago Tribe was honored to host Secretary Haaland and her staff. The meeting culminates years of cooperation and coordination among the sovereigns under the auspices of growing our tribal footprint through the addition of 13 new bison and speaking of how we have no intention of going backward in any of our joint efforts. Thank you for coming to Winnebago, Secretary Haaland. May our trailblazing work clear the path into our future.

became united. Both Chairwoman, Victoria Kitcheyan, and Vice-Chairman, Isaac Smith, spoke at the release event, offering comments about how impactful the day was. "We share our gratitude with all who had a hand in making today happen. Not only those working today, but also those who've been involved since our beginnings." Kitcheyan told the crowd.

The visual of watching the bison race for the open grasslands was a spectacle indeed. Transported to the Winnebago Reservation via small livestock trailers, when the gates were opened the buffalo bolted toward their new home here. One observer said, "I've never seen anything like this in person. The way they stampeded into the prairie was a kind of homecoming I thought I'd never see. It was very, very moving!"

Later, at a reception planned for the Secretary's visit, Haaland told the capacity crowd, "Of all the losses this continent has suffered the destruction of the great plains is among it's darkest. When the federal government began its conquest of indigenous peoples, it surmised that the quote 'Indian problem' [c]ould be solved by destroying our food sources and our livelihoods. The near desecration of sacred bison herds across our nation's prairie grasslands was an intentional attempt to eradicate native peoples across our country."

Secretary Haaland went on to address the Tribal Council and gathered crowd of tribal members, "our efforts matter. [O]ur efforts mean that these beautiful creatures have a fighting chance." A member of the Pueblo Laguna [New Mexico] people herself, Haaland is the first Indigenous person to serve in any Presidential cabinet. Appointed by President Joe Biden in 2020 she has served as Secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior. She was accompanied by Assistant Secretary Bryan Newland and several staff members. Haaland continued to comment, "[b]ison are resilient. Because native peoples are resilient. Because the Winnebago tribe is resilient. We aren't going anywhere."

JESUS OUR SAVIOR LUTHERAN OUTREACH

By: Pastor Ricky Jacob

"Use these words to lift up hearts"

'Use these words to lift up each other's hearts.' What words lifts up hearts that are troubled or broken? Where does one find them? I will answer these questions in time.

Recently I learned that people who post videos on tic-toc or other social media post the thrill at the start of the video for a few seconds and then the video that leads up to that thrill is played.

It is like watching a television show or a movie that begins with the climax and then flashes back to what leads to that point. Both of these approaches attempt to have one intrigued so that they will watch the whole video.

In our lives, we seldom consider the climax of what is to come. That climax will no doubt come. We are not able to stop it. And what is to come? The climax of one's life is when one meet one's Maker.

For those of us left behind as one falls asleep we are often overwhelmed with grief. At times, it seems that nothing will comfort our broken heart.

We are often in doubt what will happen once we take our final breath. Will we live on after our hearts stops beating? No one that I know has come back from death in my lifetime. So I have no first hand knowledge of what to expect.

Some teach that when one dies he/she returns to the dust of the earth, from which Adam and Eve were formed. Some teach if one is evil - that wicked individual will never be content or satisfied in the next world; others teach that such evil people will be annihilated!

There are others who say that eventually everyone will end up in paradise. Some teach that one has to dwell in a long term 'time out' or 'penalty box' in order to suffer for his/her misdeeds but will enjoy paradise at a much later date.

There are still others who teach that where one ends up, living in paradise with Creator, His Son and the angels depends on whether your good outweighs the bad. If one falls for this teaching then one will live in despair wondering whether he or she has done enough? Or one will live with a what's the use attitude since there is no way to make up for one's past rebellious wo-wonk ways.

All of these above ways of thinking are not based on God's Sacred Word. They come from man's way of reasoning and/or the lies of the devil.

So now we come to the climax of one's life - when Jesus the 'Honored Chief' will return. We read from the Apostle Paul's first letter to the church of the Thessalonians:

'What we are telling you comes from the words of our Honored Chief. We who remain alive until his coming will not come face to face with him ahead of the ones who have walked on. For our Honored Chief himself will come down from the spirit-world above with a war cry. The voice of the chief spirit-messenger will join with him, and the eagle bone whistle will sound. First, the ones who died trusting in [Chief] (the Anointed One) will rise. Then, together with them, we who have remained alive will be taken up into the clouds to meet our Honored Chief in the air. Then we will always be with him. Use these words to lift up each other's hearts' [1st Thessalonians 4:15-18 1st Nations Version [slightly altered].

Here we see the glory of Christ Jesus' victorious return - the climax of one's life. Having visualized this we can travel down life's journey with uplifted hearts!

HAKWE

Question of the Issue:

With the Thanksgiving holiday approaching, what are you grateful for this holiday season?

Garan: I will start my answer with a quote “Being thankful and not expressing it is like wrapping a present and not giving it.” – William Arthur Ward. That made sense to me, so I am thankful to be blessed with my job, family and friends.

Brian: There have been many changes for me this past year, even the past 4 years. Being grateful for many things comes easy, especially for things like my family, my health, and being surrounded by good music, good food, and good conversations. ... oh and, Nebraska volleyball! #GBR I'll leave you with a favorite quote: “Gratitude unlocks the fullness of life. It turns what we have into enough, and more. It turns denial into acceptance, chaos to order, confusion to clarity. It can turn a meal into a feast, a house into a home, a stranger into a friend. Gratitude makes sense of our past, brings peace for today and creates a vision for tomorrow.” - Melody Beattie

Tyler: I'm thankful for the memories I've made with my son and family this past year. As I get older, I realize that making memories together is what makes me happy.

Kevin: I'm thankful for my family and friends.

Christina: I am thankful for my health and my supportive friends and family. There's really a lot to be thankful for but we'll be here all day listing them.

Bethani: I am most grateful for my family; they keep me going. I'm grateful for my boys, they bring all the love & light to my life. I'm grateful for my friends, my health, my career, & can't forget to mention my fur baby Yoda! There are just so many reasons to be grateful, I could go on & on. As said by Eckhart Tolle, “acknowledging the good that you already have in your life is the foundation for all abundance.” <3

EDITOR'S MOVIE REVIEW: TRANSFORMERS ONE “More Than Meets the Eye”

By Brian Chamberlain
Images: Paramount / Hasbro

When the world came to know the Transformers back in the early to mid-1980s, they took the world of toys by storm. Action figures were now transformed into a combination of vehicles, weapons, and other cool items using the ingenious engineering that gave their young owners both. For the first time beloved toys could be morphed into two separate worlds. Happy to say, I was part of that revolution. The Hasbro / TOMY toy line grew from a modest first offering into a whole genre of subsequent groupings that just kept going and going. Originating in Japan, the brainchild of Shoji Kawamori took on a life of its own. The Transformers reached America and took the rest of the world from there. Now more than 40 years later the iconic toy-line continues with the latest feature film – Transformers One.

Taking the step to return to full animation, Paramount Studios planned the movie nearly a decade ago. Story writers were hired, movie directors were courted, and actors were discussed with a wide range of options for the lead characters. With the natural slowdown caused by the world-wide pandemic, this film was finally set for release in the late summer of 2024. Opening to worldwide success, first debuting in Australia, Transformers One has paced box office sales globally, making it the latest in the string of hits for the franchise. Along with the totally awesome 80s era toys there was a library of comic books. These stories have served as the basis for the long-lived saga of the Transformers. The 2024 release of Transformers One is just the latest in the popular lineage using that storyline.

Beginning as a prequel to all the other stories, both animated and live-action, Transformers One returns us to the planet Cybertron. The Primes, who were the de facto Titans of the living mechanical world have all but disappeared, save one. Sentinel Prime is the sole survivor of the original race of Transformers. Their society has lost the all-important Matrix of Leadership. The loss creating havoc amongst the remaining residents of Cybertron as their source of energy, Energon, has stopped flowing.

The story begins with two pals in the sub-race of robots working in the mines that seek their precious Energon. The hijinks of the pair give the whole movie a buddy-flick feel. Soon however the plot twists to force them both into the spotlight. The main characters are voiced by Marvel movie icons, Chris Hemsworth, and Scarlett Johansson, who are joined by Keegan-Michael Key, Brian Henry, Steve Buscemi, Jon Hamm, and Matrix star, Lawrence Fishburne.

At first the story lumbers along in a non-thrilling way. The layout seemed typical, and I was afraid the usual bite of conformity would sink its teeth into this movie. But once the ample introduction is complete, the characters take on the lives of their writers' imaginations and the absolute state of the art CGI animation begins to engage. The imagination within the story is bold enough to keep the characters fresh, while also giving them a growing depth – a characteristic often missing from most action movie animations. The deviation in the pathways of the pair of friends isn't hidden, but the way it unfolds is quite unexpected, and I've been watching this franchise for decades.

Meaning to reignite the franchise, Transformers One tells a great original story, that ultimately sets up the yet untold sequels. Watching the new take on legacy driven characters, like Megatron and StarScream was a real delight. They also had good scenes with my personal favorite, Soundwave. Yes, the cassettes make their appearance too. The cast's jokes landed when they needed to and didn't seem overly corny. The hierarchy of what we all knew from the other movies, comics, and animation series is established perfectly. The birth of both the Autobots and the Decepticons comes to be known, and yes there is a gem in the after-credits, so keep watching until the very end.

Overall, Transformers One does its franchise proud. Excellent CGI animation. On our world-famous HaazZaat scale I'm giving this One an Energon cube dripping solid 4 Haazs. Prime popcorn gorging fun! Go see this one, even if you've never seen any of the others. I can't wait to see the next episodes.
